Poverty: Search for a Way Out

Cover of $2 Senate report
. . . and a 25-cent condensation for the poor

Guaranteed Income Need Stressed But Ottawa Balks at Heavy Cost

OTTAWA (CP) — The government and the Senate poverty committee clashed head-on Wednesday over the committee's proposal to pay needy Canadians a guaranteed annual income.

"Too costly," said federal Welfare Minister John Munro, echoing the stand taken on the issue earlier by Prime Minister Trudeau.

"Nonsense," retorted Senator David Croll, the 71-year-old Toronto Liberal who was committee chairman. "We can't afford not to do this. The present welfare system has outlived its usefulness."

* * *

The guaranteed income would apply to all except persons under age 40 and non-citizens. Their needs would continue to be taken care of by welfare laws.

The committee said everyone below certain "poverty lines" should be exempt from income tax. The poverty lines, determined yearly, would be based on living standards, average national income and family size.

In addition, an income floor would be fixed at 70 per cent of the poverty line so that anyone earning less than the floor would receive payments up to that level.

Croll's committee estimated the plan would have cost between $800 and $900 million if it had been in force last year.

Munro's estimate was $1.5 to $2 billion more than the current government income-subsidy programs such as family and youth allowances and old age pension.

* * *

It would hit taxpayers too hard, he said in and outside the Commons.

"Governments have always backed away from programs," said Croll. "They have been doing it for 40 years."

He promptly announced plans to distribute widely both a $2 paperbound copy of the report and a 25-cent condensation. He said the senators are counting on strong public pressure to make governments adopt the plan.

Croll said in three years of hearings across Canada, the committee found not a single defender of the existing welfare system.

The report quickly ran into criticism from one non-government source.

The Highlights

Floor income of $3,500 guaranteed, protect consumers, provide legal aid

The following are the highlights of the senate committee report on poverty:

- A guaranteed annual income plan should be implemented with a floor income of $3,500. For a family of four — 70 per cent of the poverty line would be the floor. A poverty line based on a measure of the average standard of living would be established.
- The federal government would administer the plan at an estimated cost of $800 to $900 million.
- Income maintenance legislation such as family and youth allowances and old age pensions would be repealed and recipients would receive payments under the new guaranteed income plan.
- A council for applied social research should be established at the national level.
- The federal government should seek uniformity with respect to workmen's compensation.
- The federal government should pursue the objective of full employment.
- The federal government should pass legislation making equal pay for equal work mandatory.
- No minimum wage should be lower than 60 per cent of the average wage-rate in each province or zone.
- Steps should be taken to protect consumers from collection agencies and loan companies and high-risk borrowers should be provided with insured loans.
- The government of Canada should establish a national office of education to deal with national education goals.
- Hospital and medical care services should be financed entirely out of tax dollars and community based health services should be encouraged.
- Persons affected by urban renewal programs should have a say in such plans.
- There should only be one jurisdiction responsible for the entire administration of legal aid and all persons under the poverty line should get free legal aid as their right.
- Care services for children of all ages should be available as a "necessary resource for the contemporary family."

Croll Report Quotes

'Existence of poverty not only deprives the poor; it impoverishes the economy'

- "Poverty is the great social issue of our time. Unless we act now, nationally and in a new and purposeful way, five million Canadians will continue to find life a bleak, bitter and never-ending struggle for survival."
- "The poor do not choose poverty. It is at once their affliction and our national shame."
- "The grim fact is that one Canadian in four lacks sufficient income to maintain a basic standard of living."
- "No nation can achieve its true greatness if it lacks the courage and determination to undertake the surgery necessary to remove the cancer of poverty from its body politic. Canadians as a whole cannot escape their share of responsibility for the situation in which this nation finds itself."
- "The social welfare structure so laboriously and painstakingly erected in Canada over the past 40 years has clearly outlived its usefulness. The social scientists who have studied it, the bureaucratics who have administered it and the poor who have experienced it are of one mind in that today's swiftly changing world, the welfare system is a hopeless failure."
- "The system has become an instrument of paternalism whereby recipients have been compelled to do what others thought good for them, and to conform to middle-class norms that the poor themselves have neither comprehended nor appreciated."
- "Sixty per cent of the poor are not on welfare."
- "The notion that the poor do not want to work can be quickly dispelled. The plain fact is that the vast majority of the 'working poor' continue to work at jobs that pay no more than they would receive on welfare."
- "The existence of poverty not only deprives the poor; it impoverishes the whole economy. The inadequate participation of the poor in the economy, it has been estimated, deprives it of somewhere between $1-2½ billion a year."
- "We must move from a welfare strategy to income strategy; from services to money; from helplessness to hope; and from despair to destiny. We propose to pay people, not governments."

Income Plan Opposed

Gaglardi Says Report Takes Turn for Worse

Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi said Wednesday he agrees with a part of the Senate report on poverty but added "nobody has come up with what is going to be the behavior of a human family treated on that (guaranteed annual income) kind of system."

"The report says 'scrap the welfare system,' which I'll buy. But the senate suggests replacing the welfare system which is bad enough with something that is 20 times worse," Gaglardi said.

Gaglardi pointed out a guaranteed annual income would rob persons of their dignity. "When people receive money when they're not in need . . . you're deteriorating them."

In the past Premier Bennett has gone on record as strongly favoring a guaranteed annual wage for all Canadians. He has argued that if all Quebecers were entitled to a decent living standard there would be no separatism.

Instead of "pouring millions of dollars into something that is useless," Gaglardi suggested that the money be used to create full employment.

"The only time a person is happy is when he is making his own way," Gaglardi said. He said ambition and incentive would be destroyed in a guaranteed annual wage system.

After pointing out that communism should theoretically work, Gaglardi cited Russia as a country in which "communism doesn't work."

"It takes incentive to get people to work. In Russia, they can't even grow enough wheat on their farms for themselves," he said.

House Hurries Tax Bill Items

OTTAWA (CP) — MPs moved from acrimony to amity Wednesday in the tax-bill debate, passing more items in one afternoon than they had in all previous 15 days of technical scrutiny of the bill.

The easy-going mood was in marked contrast to a knock-down battle Tuesday night when the government suspended debate on a hotly-contested farming clause, and accused Progressive Conservative MPs of filibuster.

Most of the subclauses passed Wednesday, however, were hold-overs from the existing tax laws. Others involved minor or non-controversial changes.

A total of 39 subclauses were approved in the afternoon, bringing the total passed to 71. There are 333 in all in the big bill.

The afternoon sitting settled down despite a provocative motion by Steve Otto, parliamentary secretary to Supply Minister James Richardson, that the House quit debating the bill in the face of opposition filibuster.

The House defeated his motion, MPs of all parties standing against him.

Otto introduced his motion after the debate began on the issue that raised tempers Tuesday night — the prohibition on claiming salary paid a wife by her husband as a tax-deductible business expense.

But the government proposal to continue the restriction was approved right after the

Barrett Clowning, Bennett Replies

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislature Reporter

Premier Bennett Wednesday shrugged off Opposition Leader Dave Barrett's call for a winter election, saying the NDP chief was "a clown" making wild and irresponsible statements.

Commenting on the NDP leader's statement that issues for a winter election would be employment and what he claimed was an attempt to make B.C. another California, Bennett said:

"My very good friend Mr. Barrett just couldn't stand the great success of the Social Credit convention in Vancouver so he had to go off in his usual manner and make wild and irresponsible statements.

"He's just clowning, and that is apparently what he's best at. All the facts about the B.C. economy are completely the opposite of what he said."

Bennett produced the latest Statistics Canada data which show there were 75,000 more persons employed in B.C. last month than there were in the same month of 1970. The jobless total dropped to 53,000 from 69,000 in the 12-month period, while the seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate in B.C. dropped to 6.2 per cent from 8.4 per cent in October, 1970.

Unemployment, Bennett said, remains a problem but it is one which B.C. is coping with better than any other province. He added: "This is just the opposite of the impression that Mr. Barrett, the extreme leftist head of the Reuben Baetz, executive director of the Canadian Council on Social Development, said that setting the guaranteed income at figures below the "poverty line" meant the plan would guarantee poverty, not income."

This was worse than the existing system which at least tried to pay according to need, he said. He also questioned those excluded at the start — the under 40s and non-citizens.

Croll told a news conference the possibility of bad public reactions to giving young people government-guaranteed incomes led to their exclusion.

"We felt they ought to be in the labor force, and not at this early age falling back on income maintenance."

The exclusion of non-citizens would not last more than five years — the time it takes to qualify for citizenship.

The senate's proposals sparked discussion mainly on the guaranteed income issue, tending to obscure many other recommendations to help the poor with higher wage minimums, legal aid, consumer protection, health care, education and manpower services.

The committee issued poverty-line calculations showing a range in 1969 of $2,140 for a single person to $9,290 for a family of 10. Annual earnings below these levels would not have been subject to income tax.

The income guarantees would have ranged from $1,500 a year for a single person to $6,500 for a 10-member family. Earnings below the income guarantees would have been supplemented to bring annual income to those levels.

Extra income would not be fully deducted from this guarantee as an incentive to work.

Seventy cents would be cut for every dollar of extra income earned.

This would ensure that workers keep more money than those who do not work, says the committee.

It says the 70 cents is high and should be reduced as soon as possible.

The report appeals to the public to make the plan a priority for the 1970s and says the guaranteed annual income is "the first step in the war against poverty."

It says 60 per cent of the poor are not on welfare. Nearly 90 per cent of welfare recipients are said to be outside the labor force, comprising the very old, very young, sick, disabled, deserted or widowed mothers of young children and those incapable of taking jobs even during full employment.

Full employment and higher minimum wages are designated as national policy objectives.

The poverty lines, marking the point at which earners would be exempt from income tax, would be adjusted annually. They would be related to an average standard of living and reflect changes in national average incomes and family size.

Adoption of the guaranteed income plan would immediately replace existing family allowances, youth allowances and old age pensions. No one would get less income under the new plan.

Unemployment insurance, Canada pension plan, veterans' allowances and programs for Indians and Eskimos would not be touched.

The report is the culmination of a three-year study with cross-Canada hearings and a controversy caused by the resignation of four staff members in a dispute about the contents of the report.

The report was making no effort to get to the roots of the poverty problem, the four staffers charged. They were writers Ian Adams and William Cameron and economists Brian Hill and Peter Penz.

Croll retorted that the four were preoccupied with "restructuring" society while the committee was more interested in doing something for the poor.

In its final form, the report spread a host of recommendations before the Senate ranging from legislation to guarantee equal pay for equal work to a stronger federal presence in education.

It calls for, among other things:

● Easier and cheaper bankruptcy for individuals.

● Development of national education goals.

● Subsidized housing and expanded public housing programs and effective ways to ensure the guaranteed income is not absorbed by rent and other cost increases.

● Expansion of health insurance to cover dental care and prescription drugs, plus greater emphasis on preventive and rehabilitative health care.

● Federal funding for provincial plans that provide legal aid to the poor without qualification or contribution.

Mercy Plea Proves Vain

LONDONDERRY (Reuter) — A young Roman Catholic girl believed to be engaged to a British soldier wept and begged for mercy early today as she was manhandled by a hostile crowd, tied to a lamppost and covered with tar.

A cardboard placard reading "Soldier doll" was hung from her neck and some 200 spectators watched in silence as a woman used scissors to crop her long dark hair.

Gorde Hunter
Scofflaws

THE REAL condemnation of our permissive society is the utter contempt the wrongdoer has for the law of the land.

Our Bill Thomas, covering the Donovan concert at the McPherson last week, reported drug pedlars were openly hawking their caps of death to those waiting in line outside the theatre. These dregs of society were laughing at the law. Gambling a light sentence to make a big buck.

They have reached this state of comparative safety because of the bleeding hearts, by the LeDain commissions, by those who cry for rehabilitation rather than stiff sentencing. Rehabilitation for the unfortunate user, the befuddled addict, yes, but stiffer and stiffer sentences for the human leaches who inflict the terrible torture on other human beings.

MANY MONTHS ago I recounted the story of a Victoria area mother, her own well-being at the breaking point because of a son who had become a junkie. She wasn't sure he was also peddling, but she had pretty good suspicions.

She knew what she was suggesting could possibly put her son behind bars for a long time, but she was now looking to the good of all concerned.

"A PUSHER," she said, "should receive a minimum sentence of 15 years in jail without hope of parole. A second conviction — 30 years and so on."

Harsh? Hell yes, but only a tiny fraction as harsh as the sentence the pushers inflict on the addict — a sentence that often ends in death.

Short sentences are of little value in controlling the terrible explosion of the drug cult. To many the profits involved are worth the risk.

You constantly hear the argument that marijuana has not been proved harmful. But those who utter the statement utter a false hood. German physicians have detected brain damage after just short periods of usage.

NOW The American Medical Association, while not making any such claim, has figures from a wide survey that show 75 per cent of those who use marijuana go on to use the mind-blowers like LSD, mescaline and so on. Is this not good enough reason to halt the marijuana toll, to hand down trafficking sentences of far greater severity?

But leave the police handcuffed as they are at this time and today's rampant flood of addiction will by comparison look like a trickle from the leaky toilet five years from now.

Yet I wonder if our premiers, our attorneys-General, ever listen to any but the permissive arguments. They might if their sons, their daughters, were caught up in the nauseous needle of dope. It would be an awful way to see the light and I don't wish it on them or on anybody.

THE OTHER day while making a ferry crossing to Vancouver, I asked the magazine rack attendant about the rather pedestrian array of magazines on sale. I was told, of course, that these magazines did not contain any booze or cigarette advertising and those that did were banned.

All well and good, but I wonder if Premier Bennett or the admiral of his fleet consider booze and cigarette advertising any worse than skin pornography in some of the biggies displayed on the same rack.

U.S. Official Coming to Ottawa

Oil, Gas Again Topic

OTTAWA (UPI) — The question of Canadian gas and oil exports to the United States may be raised as general talks between Canadian and U.S. finance officials going on since Aug. 15 resume next week, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Wednesday.

Sharp told newsmen outside the House of Commons that officials may be coming here shortly and that they may want to discuss the question of oil and gas exports.

A spokesman for Sharp's office later confirmed that the meeting would be held some time next week although he was unable to be more specific.

The question of talks with Americans over oil and gas was brought up in the Commons by Conservatives Eldon Woolliams, who asked Sharp whether talks with U.S. officials on these matters would be continued.

Sharp replied that there may be some resumption of these talks in the near future and a U.S. official would like to come up to Canada and talk to us about the matter.

Canadians and Americans last met in the spring to discuss oil and gas exports but there have been no subsequent meetings although the United States has indicated it would like further meetings.

Government officials later said that when Sharp referred to meetings being resumed he was not referring to the oil and gas talks but to the general meetings that have been going on between Canadian and U.S. officials since Aug. 15.

Money Talks In Tokyo

TOKYO (UPI) — U.S. Treasury Secretary John Connally has asked Japanese Finance Minister Mikio Mizuta for a substantial revaluation of the yen, informed Japanese government sources said Wednesday.

Connally met for two hours with Mizuta, seeking a settlement of Japanese-American economic disputes as a prelude to a solution of the world monetary crisis.

Japanese government sources said Mizuta resisted pressure for further revaluation of the yen, whose price in relation to the U.S. dollar has risen by 9.5 per cent since the Japanese government floated its currency Aug. 28.

The United States has asked Japan to raise the price of the yen in order to make it more difficult for Japan to sell manufactured goods in the United States.

Japanese official sources said Mizuta told Connally that a devaluation of the American dollar should be part of any settlement of the currency problem. The same position has been taken by European common market countries.

Thousand Soldiers Nab IRA Leaders

BELFAST (Northern Ireland) (UPI) — Nearly 7,000 British troops searching for extremists and hidden weapons in Roman Catholic areas of Belfast for the second time in 24 hours Wednesday captured several suspected leaders of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, the army said.

In Londonderry, a group of men and women tarred and feathered two Roman Catholic girls — one for dating a British soldier and the other for planning to marry a soldier.

IRA and Roman Catholics are baffling Protestants and British Troops in Northern Ireland over religious and secular issues which include a drive by some Catholics to unite—this British province with the Irish Republic.

Army sources said "Several top IRA men were rounded up in sweeps in the Ardoyne, a Roman Catholic area of Belfast where six soldiers and four policemen have been killed since February.

Population Pressure

FOR THE CONSERVATION-MINDED, it is possible to take comfort from metropolitan Victoria's moderate rate of growth. Preliminary figures from the census of last June show, according to Statistics Canada, that over five years the increase in population has been 8.9 per cent, or about 1.8 per cent a year. This rate, if it does not substantially vary, gives the region around 40 years to accommodate a population doubled from this year's 193,512. In trying to preserve open and natural space on the Saanich Peninsula, the community is in a race with time, but not a desperate one.

It is worth recalling, certainly, that the Capital Region Planning Board in its plan for regional development back at the beginning of 1959 foresaw that today's population figure would mark the arrival of a new phase of urban expansion. The board predicted the region would have 195,000 people by 1976, and the 1971 count for metropolitan Victoria is 193,512, subject to some adjustment.

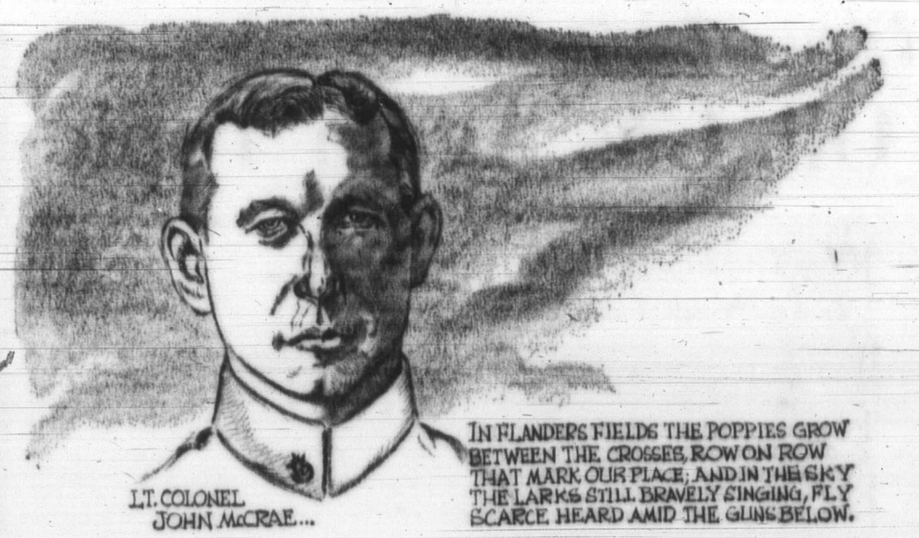

"After 1976 when development starts to move through Royal Oak," the board said, "the urban area if it continues to grow, will narrow from six miles wide to an average of not more than three miles wide. Continued development, even of compact single family dwellings, would then steamroller through the peninsula . . . At the north boundary of Saanich the population might be 300,000, at the north boundary of Central Saanich the population might be 375,000 to 400,000. The peninsula as a scenic rural area would be gone. If sprawl is permitted to continue the loss would occur in less than half the time."

The region still has time to heed that warning.

But even on Vancouver Island, and more on the Gulf Islands, there must be some far-sighted dismay at metropolitan Vancouver's galloping growth, which the census figures indicate has been 14.9 per cent over the five years or a shade less than 3 per cent a year. At 3 per cent compounded, the population can be expected to double in 24 years. It is now 1,071,081 according to the preliminary statistics. And the rate may be increasing. A B.C. Public Health Service report in September placed the provincial growth figure for last year at 3.5 per cent. The migration to the bigger cities, or their suburbs and fringes, moreover continues.

The Vancouver urban tide, constricted by mountains and sea, already surges through the remaining available open space. There is talk of a bridge-and-ferry system connecting Vancouver Island, the Gulf Islands and the mainland. A complete bridge system is seen dimly ahead. Fast air-cushion ferries are also in prospect.

Long-range planning for the islands as part of the capital region is in progress, and almost certainly will preclude heavy residential development. But Vancouver's fast growth will exert a dangerous pressure, and perhaps more rapidly than Victoria's northward urban expansion will call for effective protective measures.

Still on Collision Course

POSSIBLY THE MOST IMPRESSIVE commentary on the state of the world today was inadvertantly delivered by Queen Elizabeth in the speech from the throne Nov. 2. "My ministers," she said in part, "will work . . . for peace in the Middle East . . . They will co-operate in the new arrangements concerning the defence of Malaysia and Singapore . . . They will continue to work towards a solution to the problems of East Pakistan; an end to the conflict in Indo-China . . . and are determined that violence in Northern Ireland shall be brought to an end."

It is not a pretty picture Her Majesty sketches, and the prospects for any improvement are not easily discovered.

From Delhi on Nov. 5 Peter Hazelhurst reported to The Times (London): . . .

"In an atmosphere charged with war hysteria it was learnt today that the Soviet Air Force has suddenly begun to ferry a large quantity of arms, including missiles, and and an unspecified number of Russian instructors to India."

Simultaneously, the Pakistan official radio was broadcasting the news that Z. A. Bhutto, President Yahya Khan's trouble-shooter, along with the chiefs of the armed services, had flown to Peking for "urgent consultations." China has already pledged all necessary assistance in the event of war.

These developments hardly encourage the hopes of the British government, the United States and the United Nations' U Thant, foremost among those who are trying to encourage a settlement of the India-Pakistan quarrel.

Nor would this be the first occasion when the world has observed great powers pouring arms and other aid into the eager hands of people who believe that only by their use can they dissolve their differences. The suspicion in this case must grow that neither China nor the Soviet Union is reluctant to fight an ideologically-tinted war on somebody else's soil and with somebody else's manpower.

At this critical point the course of wisdom would appear to be that recommended by India's Prime Minister Indira Gandhi. The people of East Bengal must be allowed to decide their own political future, she insists — even if that means separation from Pakistan. At the same time she denies that her country has any design for acquisition of the trouble-torn state.

Now someone must convince Moscow and Peking that this is a saner solution than they appear to favor. Perhaps the Canadian government could test its influence among newly acquired friends.

Bitter Fruit

ON Saturday there was a seminar at the University of Victoria on "The Environmental Effects of Warfare."

On Sunday evening CBC's Weekend program pictured the grazing lands of southern Alberta which are to be used as a live ammunition range by British tanks.

The October 1 issue of The New Statesman had an article headed "Land for soldiers or people?" It indicated that the long battle by conservationists against despoilation of the British countryside by tanks is at last bearing fruit — somewhat bitter fruit so far as the fragile ecology of the southern Alberta grass lands is concerned.

Can anyone find out just what the Canadian government has agreed to and whether our new Department of the Environment has been consulted?

History

May I remark on the wonderful Greater Victoria Water District meeting held in Sooke Community Hall Nov. 1 and attended by approximately 350 lively Sooke area residents.

When a vague reference was made to precious local names of some of those who comprised the 1913, Sooke Harbour Water Co., I recollected that these persons were John A. Murray J. P., president; R. J. Mellin, secretary; William U. Muir, who volunteered his wisdom and labor towards erecting the fine large Sooke Community Hall, Dr. Richard Felton who came from Guy's Hospital and saved many lives including mine, and Caroline Sanderson, later Mrs. George W. W. Throup, whose keen speculative mind had most successful vision, directors.

Let us more thoroughly search our local history; too many inaccuracies invade and distress sensitive listeners, who can not forget the contributions towards improvements these far seeing citizens made to beautiful Sooke.

Refugee Crisis

The crisis in India-Pakistan has reached such proportions that only massive government intervention can effect any tenable solution. It is because of this belief that Oxfam Canada is urging strong government action to be taken immediately.

Mr. Alan Leather, assistant to Raymond Cournoyer, Oxfam field director for East India, during the present refugee crisis, was in Canada the first week of October. During his visit, Mr. Leather and Oxfam Canada personnel met with Mr. P. Gerin-Lajoie, president of the Canadian International Development Agency which is a Crown Agency under the Department for External Affairs, to discuss the current situation in India - Pakistan. Discussion centered around the question of further government aid to the refugees in India. It was urged that the government of Canada initiate immediate placement of the Pakistan situation on the agenda of the UN General Assembly; that Canada press for a much expanded UN aid program to include UN negotiations with the Pakistan authorities and the Bangla Desh for safe conduct of food and relief supplies within East Pakistan and the appointment of senior UN personnel to operate the program; and the urging of a cease-fire as a temporary solution to the problem to allow the introduction of massive amounts of relief supplies into East Pakistan.

On October 19, Dr. Robert McClure, former moderator of the United Church of Canada and a member of Oxfam's board, addressed a special committee of the House of Commons in Oxfam's brief, Dr. McClure stressed the need for political settlement, the need to encourage voluntary agencies such as Oxfam to increase public awareness of the India-Pakistan problem, an awareness that could be increased by the application of matching grants to agencies from government sources, and the need for the Canadian government to act immediately both in a financial and peace-making role.

It is Oxfam's hope that concerned members of the public will endorse our stand and write individual letters to their members of Parliament in Ottawa urging the government to respond to the current crisis in a strong and definitive manner.

There are over nine million refugees within India. A famine of staggering proportions is imminent in East Pakistan. This is not an "internal matter." It is a matter which must actively involve the entire world community. If we turn our backs it will be to our everlasting shame.

DEREK HAYES, Chairman,
Board of Directors,
Oxfam of Canada.

Hearing Aids

The high cost of hearing aids, batteries and other needed accessories is the main grievance of those using them. The new Hearing Aid Regulation Act, by not giving power to control prices charged, as stated by the board's chairman will likely increase those prices.

The act calls for the dealers to take out a $5,000 bond, pay a registration fee of $150, also a further licensing fee in excess of $100 depending on number of employees. To recoup for these added expenses a dealer will pass them on to his deaf customers by raising prices.

As regards a $50 aid which Mrs. Dawson, minister without portfolio, says is a breakthrough for B.C. it may be news to her, despite a three-year study by the government, that the British-made aids as issued to the deaf without cost by the British National Health Scheme, have been sold here for $35. Also, new and guaranteed aids for $44.50 are advertised in the Legion magazine.

It is likely the above act will result in giving the dealer's organization a monopoly on the hearing aid business by close restriction of competition. One can only wish the new board every success if it can be of good effect in reducing the high cost of being deaf.

However, it is more likely the Saskatchewan and Manitoba governments are on the right track in this regard. Developments will be interesting for deaf people to watch. For too long have they been exploited.

Put Them All Together . . .

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonist Ottawa Bureau

PRIME Minister Trudeau, still brushing aside protests which range between the sad and the angry, must wonder how it could all happen at once.

Within that recent wildly improbable week there was his government hosting Soviet Premier Kosygin, casting its United Nations vote for Red China and against the United States, bitterly protesting President Nixon's decision to go with the Amchitka nuclear blast, while all the while putting pressure on Washington to drop the 10 per cent surcharge on Canadian exports.

The total effect on this most unusual Canadian diplomatic activity was to leave the distinct impression that the Trudeau government was cooling old friendships with the Americans while warming up new acquaintances with their enemies.

Time and time again the prime minister has pleaded that it was all coincidence.

And totally misunderstood by his critics.

He and his cabinet have been at pains to defend each action as the reasonable thing to do.

The way he sees it this has to be so.

* * *

But taken all together as part of the foreign policy picture in one frantic week, it looks to a great many concerned Canadians that their government has taken a sharp swing left in its international course.

An excellent place to take the temperature of the public on any hot political issue is in the letters-to-the-editor columns of the Ottawa newspapers.

This is so because Ottawa, being the National Capital, is the most professionally political of any Canadian city, is so slow to blow its cool it gives the appearance of being keyed by it all.

It doesn't demonstrate most protesters are hauled in from Toronto and Montreal and it won't even bother (too blase) to turn out either to cheer the queen when she visits, rubberneck VIPs such as Kosygin when they tour, or stand in silence at the Cenotaph on Remembrance Day.

So if you want to determine whether the political pot is simmering or coming to a boil among the taxpayers you stick your finger in the letters-to-the-editor columns.

And so it had to indicate a high degree of public fury when both Journal and Citizen topped their letters' columns with two anti-Trudeau blasts. Especially the frankly pro-Liberal Citizen.

Wrote P.M. Allen to The Citizen, in part:

I am frustrated by this government's insistent criticism of and antagonism towards the U.S.

In his three years as prime minister, Mr. Trudeau has lost no opportunity to needle the U.S. by courting its enemies, deriding its policies and opposing its actions on every international issue.

He then has the insolence to send his ministers whimpering to Washington about the surcharge.

I only hope that Americans generally realize that the large majority of Canadians do not share the anti-American sentiments of their government.

I am also bitterly angered by the fact that this country is represented at the United Nations in the French language. How dare he . . . when 70 per cent of Canadians don't speak French, don't intend learning to, and wouldn't care if French were never heard again in this or any other country.

I suspect this is just another means of pulling the eagle's tail-feathers.

* * *

Then in The Journal this:

We scaled down the role the U.S. asked us to play in NATO and NORAD.

We supported a two-China policy when the U.S. still backed a one-China policy, when the U.S. accepted the two-China principle, we voted against it, recognizing Red China alone over the protests of the U.S.

We have harbored their draft dodgers and military deserters.

We have criticized and ridiculed their war effort in Vietnam.

We have set limits on the type of industry which Americans may own in Canada.

We have prospered on a free-trade auto pact favoring Canada.

And now we have the stupidity, the naivete or the gall (all elments may be involved) to wonder why the U.S. won't listen to our bleatings.

Maybe we were right in our policies; as a free, sovereign nation we can take such action as we feel is in our best interest.

But let us not feign surprise or dismay when the U.S., equally free and sovereign, takes action which it feels is in its best interest.

And so it has gone, in and out of Parliament, MPs and plain people putting the wood to Pierre Trudeau because of his actions, all taken in that one frenzied week, which he swears was all so coincidental.

But the damage is deep and lasting, as he is only beginning to realize.

I Beg to Differ

Bore Chaser Worries

By FRANK LOWE

A FEW years ago the "in" thing in the executive suite was the executive sand box.

The idea, as presented at the time, was that in the office of each busy executive there should be a sand box, just like the one in the back yard, only ritzier.

Then, when the nerves of the executive got jangled he could leave his chair and go and wallow in the sand. This, it was said, would unravel his nerves and prevent attacks of paranoia.

* * *

Somehow, however, I don't think the idea caught on. At least, not in any executive suite I visit.

Now, to replace the executive sand box, are something known as worry beads.

I had heard about worry beads but never expected to own a set.

But recently my wife returned from a trip. And her homecoming gift to me was a string of my very own worry beads.

"In Greece," she explained, "the men sit in the outdoor bars all day, drinking and fondling their worry beads."

That I could understand. If I sat around all day drinking I would be so worried about such mundane things as paying the rent I could probably wear out a set of worry beads in a week.

However, I didn't say anything. A husband learns early in life not to make comments about gifts from his wife.

So I accepted my gift and made the appropriate noises.

"My, but those beads are a beautiful shade of black," I said. "And what do you know, the black beads match the black thread perfectly. Clever, those Greeks."

After my wife left the room, rather huffily for some reason I couldn't fathom, I put the beads in my pocket and forgot them.

Or I did until the next day when I was in my office. I was sitting there being bored silly by a visitor when my hand reached to find my long-time worry beads — my cigarettes.

Instead my groping fingers came up with the Grecian gift. I started fondling them in the approved manner. They made a lovely clicking sound.

As the clicking went on I noticed that my visitor was getting restless, even downright nervous.

* * *

"Do you have to do that?" he finally asked, irritably, nodding at the hand holding the worry beads.

"Therapy," I said solemnly. "Doctor's orders."

Within a matter of minutes he had fled.

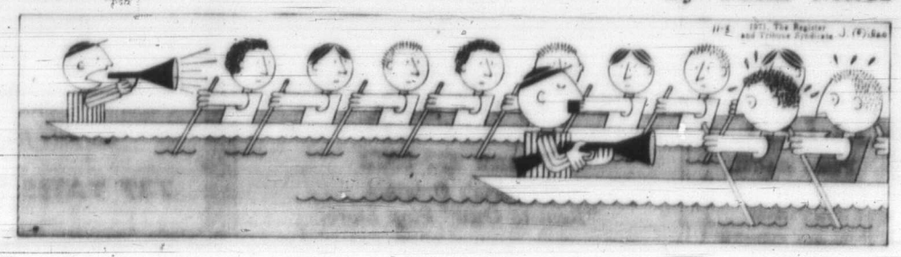

Suddenly my wife's gift took on a new dimension — The Great Bore Chaser.

Later, I mentioned this experience to some friends. Each one expressed a great deal of interest in my discovery, and each one asked me to find out where he could get his own personal Bore Chaser.

Naturally, I was delighted at this. But then I had second thoughts. Why, I asked myself, are my friends so interested in arming themselves with Bore Chasers?

Could they be trying to tell me something?

Doctors Ignore, or Fail To See, Warning Signs

People 'Build-Up' to Heart Attacks

From The London Observer

Heart attacks do not "come out of the blue" as many patients and doctors imagine, but are preceded by months or years of warning signs, which are often ignored or go unrecognized. This is the conclusion of a research project at Charing Cross Hospital, London, into the psychological causes of coronary illness.

The consultant cardiologist who carried out the research says that heart attacks are a result of a kind of "psychosis of work and tension addiction" on the part of some individuals who are capable of destroying themselves little by little and insist on living in an environment which invites them to do so.

* * *

The actual attack is long heralded by a progressive reduction in physical, mental and social efficiency, which introduces a deep and unnatural tiredness into the individual's life. Each week's duties require increased effort, problems seem to grow in number and magnitude, other people seem to become more difficult, and the use of the body declines.

Physical capacity and sexual desire also wane. Often the individual who is working himself up to a heart attack cannot recall when he last felt really well, happy and relaxed.

The coronary victim and his doctor may be surprised at the apparently sudden attack — attributing his prior ill-health to adversity and opposition, aging, depression or overwork — but his wife is less often surprised, because she had attributed his growing irritability and inefficiency to physical illness.

If the patient is admitted to an elaborate coronary-care unit and then simply sent home into the same environment that made him ill, he is not provided with a new defence system which could help him to survive.

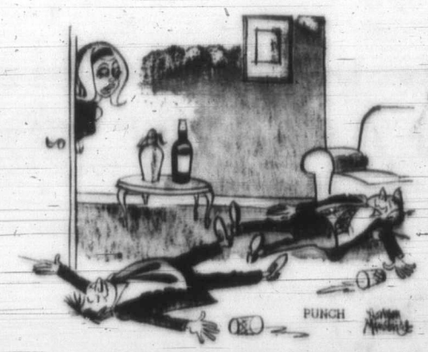

The doctor who merely instructs the coronary patient to "be moderate in all things" fails to understand the real problem.

Psychologically speaking, the coronary patient is not a "normal" person. He is a "work and tension addict who is ill from his addiction," and does not know how to match his burdens to his available energy.

* * *

— He is an individual who has a remarkable amount of hostility and aggression (often repressed), and a keen sense of pressure against time or people — and regards these as a normal part of life. He may prefer continued illness and the risk of sudden death to even a temporary modification of his way of living.

He may fully recover his lost health if he can learn to match his energies to his responsibilities, undertake controlled workouts in a gymnasium, and create a comparatively relaxed schedule for himself.

"Dinner's ready when you are."

Social, Political Objectives Real Cause of Crisis

Ulster: Religion Incidental

BACKGROUND

By RICHARD RESTON, from Belfast

Religion has become the misleading shorthand for violence and weath in Northern Ireland.

The agony of Ulster is not the agony of Catholics and Protestants in conflict over religious doctrine. The answers to the mounting death toll, to the sniper fire, to the daily bomb blasts, to the fears and the hatreds do not lie in the churches of Belfast or the sermons of Londonderry.

The reasons are to be found elsewhere.

* * *

This sad crisis is about the breakdown of social, political and moral values. It is about unemployment, the scarcity of jobs, discrimination, bad housing, slums, educational opportunities, Irish history and the politics of alienation.

The story is often told as a religious battle because that is how the population divides between a majority of one million Protestants and a minority of 500,000 Catholics. But religion in Ulster is really nothing more than a label to be worn in the pursuit of political and social objectives.

* * *

These are not the views of outsiders. They are the views of what is left of moderate and sane opinion in Northern Ireland.

They are held by such men as William Blease, head of Northern Ireland's trade union movement and Dr. Maurice Hayes, chairman of the Community Relations Commission. At this point of crisis it is questionable whether Northern Ireland is still capable of listening to moderate voices.

* * *

The crisis may already have passed these men by. But they remain as part of a diminishing body of opinion that continues to think about the ills and possible remedies for Northern Ireland's nightmare of death and destruction.

The problem now is the almost total polarization of the Catholic and Protestant communities. Belfast and other parts of Ulster are bleeding to death. Blease and Hayes, and many like them, despair for the future.

* * *

Unless a political solution is found quickly, the end result may well be a religious war fought out on social grounds.

The only thing that stands between Protestants and Catholics these days is the force of about 14,000 British peacekeeping troops.

And now they are the increasing target of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, a band of super-patriots who want Northern Ireland reunited with the Catholic Irish republic to the south.

* * *

Blease sees part of this crisis in terms of jobs and the dignity of work. In many areas of Northern Ireland the levels of unemployment divide along Protestant and Catholic lines with the minority getting by far the worst of the situation.

Unemployment here is now running at 8.3 per cent, 10 per cent of all males are without a job. In the predominantly Catholic city of Londonderry, Northern Ireland's second largest, there are cases where three generations of men have been out of work.

But the overall unemployment figures do not tell the real story of the jobless in Ulster.

* * *

In largely Catholic cities and towns, male unemployment runs far higher than many comparable Protestant communities. The rate is more than one in five in many cases.

It is 17.9 per cent in Londonderry, 21.9 per cent in Strabane, 20.4 per cent in Kilkeel, 18.5 per cent in Dungannon, 18.7 per cent in Newry, 17.3 per cent in Enniskillen, 13.1 per cent in Omagh.

The figures stand in stark contrast to male unemployment levels in predominantly Protestant communities, particularly ones considered to be potential economic growth areas. For example, the figures for Antrim are 3.5 per cent, Ballyclare 3 per cent, Lisburn 4.4 per cent and Portadown 5.5 per cent.

In many Catholic families, particularly in a city like Londonderry, the woman is the only wage earner. This sort of chronic male unemployment, according to Hayes, tears at the social fabric of the family unit, especially in slum ghetto areas.

* * *

The quality of work opportunities also differs between Catholics and Protestants. The craft or skilled unions tend to be heavily Protestant, the general or unskilled unions largely Catholic. It is generally more difficult for a Catholic to get a good job than a Protestant.

Hayes notes that sectarian strife is often at its worst in regions of high unemployment. "Thirty thousand new jobs would make a tremendous difference in this place," he says.

* * *

The Protestant community is not without its problems as well. There are also slum Protestant areas where living conditions are miserable and where the future holds little other than a sense of frustration. This is particularly evident in Belfast where the worst of the violence and destruction has occurred.

For both communities there is a kind of fatalism that has set in, Hayes says. They feel they are going to the bottom of the trough and the last foot of that trough is filled with blood.

* * *

A larger part of the problem here lies in the 50 years of Protestant political rule. One expert close to the crisis sums up the frustration of the minority this way:

The Catholics have never felt they had a stake in Protestant government. They have never seen a Catholic cabinet minister. The government is not theirs.

At this point it wouldn't make any difference if Brian Faulkner (prime minister of Northern Ireland) brought the Pope into his cabinet.

* * *

The government is now considering political reforms to give the minority a larger share in the political and public life of Northern Ireland. But Protestant consideration of political reforms on an indefinite timetable is not likely to mollify a member of the minority who today is without a job or a decent house.

It is social conditions that cut right across this crisis.

Housing, for example, in many of the depressed areas, both Catholic and Protestant, sharpens social tensions and invites sectarian strife.

* * *

Along the dirty back streets of Belfast's slums, Protestants and Catholics live in rows of faded houses with between four to eight people crowded into three small rooms and a tiny kitchen. There are no indoor toilets.

In the newer, post-war Catholic housing estate of Ballymurphy, the number of people crammed into a single house averages 8.5. The average for the province is 3.2 per dwelling.

The problems are not just on the minority side. The Protestants are attempting to cope with a minority emboldened by the thought of a united Ireland and thus a predominantly Catholic Ireland.

* * *

This is really the agony of Northern Ireland. It is a crisis in which two terrified minorities face each other with hatred and fear for the future.

Catholics see themselves as a minority hammered down by 50 years of Protestant rule. They trust no promise of a better tomorrow.

The Protestant fear is that Ireland is moving toward political reunification. And that would force the Protestants into a minority in an all-Ireland Catholic republic.

China Will Speed Disintegration Of Blocs at UN

By STEPHEN SCOTT, from United Nations

The arrival of the Chinese here probably will speed up a process of erosion that has been evident for the last few years in which it is rapidly becoming difficult to consider issues purely in an East-West context.

Not many years ago almost any issue before the United Nations or any other international forum was between the United States and the Soviet Union, with their allies approving what the super powers decided.

Even this fall, at the opening of the general assembly, the United States was talking along the lines of the settlement of the world's major problem by the Soviet Union and the United States.

The Americans were talking realistically to a degree. In such areas as disarmament, the two powers got together to reach an agreement and the rest of the world was invited to accept this agreement. But on lesser issues, erosion has been evident for some years.

The talk was not always East-West. There also was North-South — the developed opposed to the undeveloped. The super powers could not always count on their allies on all matters. Blocs had started the process of disintegration.

There still is talk here of the Afro-Asian bloc, the Latin Americans, the Western bloc — Western Europe, Canada, the United States, Australia and New Zealand — and the Soviet bloc. But these descriptions have lost much of their meaning.

The Afro-Asians are falling apart, even over such an emotional issue as partheid in South Africa. Some Africans are talking dialogue with South Africa. To others this remains anathema.

In the India-Pakistan dispute there is the strange combination of China and the United States regarded as supporters of Pakistan and the Soviet Union supporting India.

Affections Shift

In Latin America, some countries are becoming more leftist and/or nationalistic and are breaking away from what once was "Western" thinking.

Western Europe and Britain, coming slowly together as the six-country European Common Market heads in the direction of becoming 10 countries, cannot be expected to support the United States on all issues.

For some years, the U.S. has been unable to count on Canada to support its positions.

Romania's break from Soviet dominance is well known. But what is not so well known is the feeling of restiveness of other Eastern European countries.

Now along comes China, creating a triangle on the international scene with the angles being formed by China, the Soviet Union and the United States. China has made it clear that it is in nobody's corner.

It can be expected to side here with nationalism and leftism and thus increase the cleavage in various blocs. This may become most apparent in what the "Soviet bloc" thinks about issues.

Romania is almost ecstatic about the arrival of the Chinese. The Chinese are on record as being unalterably opposed to such actions as the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968.

Since that invasion Romania has used every forum available to demand protection of the sovereignty of small countries. Recently it even went so far as to hint here that it would not mind if China involved itself in the expected European security conference.

In the eyes of some observers, it is possible that in the future such countries as Poland and Hungary may follow Romania out of the Soviet hegemony.

Dow Jones Off In Sharp Dive

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices fell sharply Wednesday, with the Dow Jones industrial averages less than a point above its 1971 closing low. Trading volume was relatively light.

Shortly after the market closed, the Federal Reserve Board cut its discount rate to 4¾ per cent from 5 per cent. The move had been anticipated for several weeks by money-market observers since other short-term credit charges had been sinking sharply in recent weeks.

The NYSE index of more tha 1,300 common stocks dropped .58 to 51.58.

Amerada Hess, off 3⅛ to $36⅝ on 310,000 shares, was the most-actively traded big board stock. Trading in the issue included a block of 273,000 shares at $36½.

Chrysler was down 1 to $27, Falconbridge 1 to $62, Asamera 1 to $13¾, Sherritt ¼ to $11⅛, Canadian General Investments 1 to $63 and Bankeno 20 cents to $5.80.

Even Day

VANCOUVER — Trading slackened off without an upward or downward trend. Among industrials, Canterra dropped 5 cents to $1. Afton was most active among the mines, unchanged at 40 and Stampede International led oils, rising 3 cents to .83.

Light Trade

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices slumped in all sectors in light trading.

Petrofina Canada, which reported increased third-quarter earnings of $11.90 million or $1.19 per share compared to $10.66 million or $1.07 in the same period last year, was up ⅛ to $18⅝.

No Dividend

TORONTO (CP) — Western oil and gold issues suffered sharp declines as prices turned lower in light trading.

Northgate dropped 45 cents to $4.95. The company announced it was omitting the

Toyota Seeks Share

TOKYO (Reuter) — Toyota Motor Co., Japan's largest carmaker, said Wednesday it is considering acquiring about a one-third interest in Canada's an Motor Industries, a Canadian car assembly factory, to strengthen the latter's facilities for assembling Toyota cars in Canada.

Toyota said it is negotiating with the Canadian firm and Mitsui and Co. Ltd., a leading Japanese trading house, which owns 90 per cent of CMI.

CMI now is assembling Toyota cars on a knockdown system at a monthly rate of 100 units in its Sydney, N.S. plant.

Toyota said the ownership and expansion plans are designed to sidestep possible future moves in Canada to limit car imports.

Toyota has become top car exporter to the Canadian market with 4,000 to 5,000 cars monthly, outstripping Nissan Motor and Volkswagen.

Alaska Pipeline Foe:

Let's See Canada Plan

By PETER BUCKLEY

WASHINGTON (CP) — A persistent congressional critic of the trans-Alaska oil pipeline introduced legislation in the House of Representatives Wednesday which would delay U.S. government approval of the pipeline and force the interior department to make a "comprehensive and independent study" of an alternative line through Canada.

The legislation was introduced by Les Aspin (Dem. Wis.), who has frequently condemned the proposal to build an 800-mile pipeline from Alaska's North Slope fields to a southern Alaska port for tanker shipment of oil to the U.S. mainland.

His bill, given little chance of being dealt with by Congress at its current session, would set back federal approval until at least Jan. 1, 1973. The interior department now is expected to report on its study of the proposal by the end of this year, and approval has been widely forecast.

Aspin said the interior report "will not contain a truly thorough and honest evaluation of the Canadian pipeline as an alternative to the trans-Alaska pipeline", because Canada's own research on the project is not likely to be completed until next year.

"The evidence now available, however, clearly leads to the conclusion that a Canadian pipeline would be both ecologically and economically superior to the trans-Alaska pipeline," Aspin told Congress.

At one point, Aspin said the Canadian government prefers a Canadian route for environmental reasons. However, Canada has not officially expressed a preference, limiting itself to objections about tanker traffic in the hazardous waters off the British Columbia coast.

"A Canadian pipeline alternative must receive more than superficial and reluctant consideration by the interior department," Aspin said.

B.C. Growers Worried

Christmas Tree Crop Faces Competition

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Christmas tree growers are facing a bleak holiday season because of inroads into their business by plantation-grown trees from the United States.

The U.S. trees are taking away a large chunk of the export market from the Douglas firs grown for many years in B.C.

Leo Kahn, of Wilks and Kahn Sales, Vancouver, one of four major B.C. tree exporters, said his firm's sales this year may be down as much as 20 per cent because of the U.S. trees, which are larger and bushier than the Douglas firs.

His prediction reflects a downward trend for B.C. Christmas trees that has been going on for the last 10 years.

In the Nelson forest district in the southeastern corner of the province, 1.5 million Christmas trees were cut in 1960. Last year, one million trees were cut.

In the Kamloops district, in central B.C., one million trees were cut in 1960, only 242,000 last year.

Kahn agrees the Douglas fir is less desirable, even though it's less expensive than the trees being harvested in the U.S. plantations. He feels the affluence of the 1960s has accustomed people to buying the biggest and the best.

The wholesale price of a B.C. tree at Cranbrook, near the Alberta border, where many of the trees are harvested, is $1.25. Retail price at Vancouver is from $3 to $5 and by the time it reaches the U.S. the charge is $8.

The U.S. tree, on the other hand, costs as much as $3.50 f.o.b. from the producer. By the time it reaches its destination, it is selling for $10 or more.

Artificial trees, which posed a threat for a time to B.C. growers, have dropped in popularity, says Kahn.

His firm is taking steps to ensure that the Douglas firs his company markets are as big and well-shaped as the U.S. trees.

The company has begun pruning and shearing the trees on its Cranbrook property. By controlling their growth, it is hoped to get a bushier tree.

In 1970, B.C. exported about 1,150,000 trees to the U.S., with a total value of $900,000.

Canada as a whole exports about 6 million trees to the U.S. B.C. ranks behind the Atlantic provinces and Quebec as an exporter.

Profit Share Plan May Be Over In New Taxation

OTTAWA (CP) — Proposed tax changes could mean the end of plans by which employees share in their company's profits and receive a lump-sum payment on retirement, the Senate banking committee was told Wednesday.

The Institute of Profit Sharing, a group of companies with profit-sharing plans, criticized the government's new tax bill for proposing heavier taxes on lumpsum payments made under deferred profit-sharing plans.

Present law permits employees to average their income for tax purposes over their last three working years when they get a lumpsum payment on retirement.

The tax bill, now under debate in the Commons, would change the averaging rules so that employees would be virtually forced to buy an annuity with the amount they had built up in the profit-sharing plan, the institute said.

"This may well be the doom of profit-sharing plans, which have proven themselves to have a very positive influence on economic growth."

Institute chairman R. A. Campbell, director of Wheelabrator Corp. of Canada Ltd. and president of Metal Laundry Ltd., said many employees want a lump-sum payment so they can start a small business or be otherwise active and independent in their retirement years.

Institute vice-chairman H. A. King, a vice-president of Simpsons-Sears Ltd., said 90 per cent of Simpsons employees take a lump sum. He knew of none who squandered it.

In other appearances before the committee:

● The Insurance Bureau of Canada urged that companies be permitted to carry losses back five years or ahead 10 to average their income for tax purposes. the bill provides for carrying losses back one year and forward five.

● The Teachers Insurance and Annuity Association of America asked that its tax-exempt status be continued, saying the tax bill would require it to pay taxes on the $103 million of Canadian securities it owns.

● The Royal Architectural Institute asked that income from fellowships, scholarships, bursaries and research grants be exempt from tax.

Upswing Continuing

SASKATOON (CP) — Retail sales in Saskatchewan continued to climb during October — the ninth straight month sales have surpassed 1970 totals.

Sales in October were estimated at $106.3 million, an increase of 5.3 per cent from October, 1970.

Regina and Saskatoon have shown the greatest increase in sales during the year, statistics compiled by the Saskatchewan Retail Merchants' Association show. Regina sales during the first nine months total $198 million, an increase of 10.1 per cent. Saskatoon is close behind with a 9.9 per cent increase with sales reaching $157.9 million.

Exxon to Replace Esso?

NEW YORK (UPI) — One of the world's best known trademarks — Esso — may be on the way to extinction at the estimated cost of $60 million.

A final decision won't be made until next spring, but Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey) admits it is testing a new trade name — Exxon — in six cities. If the tests are successful it is quite likely that Exxon signs will be ordered for 28,000 Esso gas stations and billboard and other advertising changed to the new name.

Suit Delays Cremation

DETROIT (UPI) — A judge will decide today how to dispose of the body of a San Francisco millionaire who died 17 days after disenheriting his ex-wife and daughter and leaving his fortune to a woman companion and his brother.

Wayne County circuit Judge James Canham granted a temporary restraining order Tuesday to keep the body from being cremated.

"But we cannot have the man's body just sitting in a box," Canham said. "That just seems unnatural to me. It goes against my grain."

The body of Frank Isbey, 72, has been kept at a suburban Groose Pointe funeral home since his death Oct. 31. He had returned to Detroit two weeks ago for treatment of an illness by his brother, a doctor.

The disputed will leaves Isbey's fortune, of undetermined size, to Miss Martha Apfel, described as a close friend, and his brother, Dr. Edward Isbey, a former chief of staff at Holy Cross Hospital.

Dr. Isbey and Miss Apfel maintain that Isbey did not want to leave any money to his children and that it was his final wish to be cremated.

The will signed last month left Isbey's ex-wife $1 and his three daughters nothing.

The daughters are challenging the will in California courts. They asked the Detroit court to halt the cremation since it would prejudice their case in California. The daughters are also seeking an autopsy on the body.

The newly-signed will specified that Isbey's former wife and daughters should not be notified of his death and that his body should be cremated.

A former Detroiter, Isbey made his fortune in the produce business. He also served as manager of the Michigan State fair and played a prominent role in bond sales activities during the Second World War.

Statesman Upset By DDT Defence

ROME (UPI) — One of Europe's leading statesman contradicted an American Nobel Prize winner Wednesday and said the pesticide DDT is more dangerous than many persons think.

"I am one of those hysterical environmentalists . . ." said Sicco Mansholt of the Netherlands, vice-president of the six-member European common market. "I am very concerned."

He told the 18th conference of the UN Food and Agriculture Organization that the world cannot tolerate DDT use which he put at one kilogram (2.2 lbs) per person in the world over a decade.

His speech came two days after Nobel Prize-winning scientist Norman Borlaug of Cresco, Iowa, assailed environmentalists for trying to block the use of such chemicals as DDT.

Hefner Provides Punch With Nude Centrefold

LONDON (AP) — Punch, the British humor magazine that dates back to days when the sight of a woman's ankle made strong men pant, went Playboy Wednesday with sex, nudes, dirty jokes and a portrait of Playboy publisher Hugh Hefner stark naked.

The parody of Playboy, produced with Hefner's permission and help, raised eyebrows and temperatures in the stuffier London clubs, where Punch has been established fare for 129 years.

On the cover was Scandinavian actress Julie Ege in the nude but protectively surrounded by barbed wire.

In the centrepiece, where Playboy prints its feminine playmates, Punch put a fourpage fold-out drawing of Hefner, bedded on the U.S. flag and attired only in his habitual pipe.

U.S. Senate Revives $1 Billion

Efforts Rejected To Hike Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Senate grudgingly approved a revived and revised economic aid bill Wednesday, but firmly rejected efforts to fatten the pared-down program or soften severe restrictions on use of the money.

Facing a Monday deadline for a worldwide halt to the American economic aid program, Congress began moving slowly to revive the aid program unexpectedly scuttled by the Senate Oct. 29.

The $1.1 billion aid measure passed by the Senate now goes to the House. It was the first part of a two-bill package to revise and provide for interim continuance of the $2.9 billion bill the Senate rejected last month. A companion $1.2 billion military assistance bill awaited Senate action today.

Meantime late Wednesday, the House neared approval of a so-called "continuing resolution" to permit existing foreign aid projects to continue while Congress works on the new two-part substitute program.

Government accountants said Wednesday all foreign aid expenditures from administrative telephone expenses to actual assistance grants, will be totally halted Monday when present temporary spending authority expires unless Congress renews it, meantime an uncertain prospect.

In another move the Senate in a major blow to foreign aid voted 45 to 42 to double interest rates on development loans abroad.

Despite warnings from Senator Jacob Javits (R-N.Y.) that they were sounding the death knell for development assistance, senators rejected his amendment to permit continuation of loans at 2 to 3 per cent interest. The bill carries a provision barring loans at a lesser interest rate than the government has to pay for money it borrows, which would double the present rate.

vote on Otto's motion, and the progress continued the rest of the day. Party leaders appeared to be encouraging co-operation.

The 264-seat House barely fielded its 20-man quorum for the debate, as MPs headed home for Remembrance Day ceremonies to be held today. The MPs have agreed to take Friday off, too.

Despite the co-operative atmosphere on items Wednesday, the government still faces a fight on more controversial sub-clauses. MPs are due to deal Monday with the proposed new tax on capital gains.

In addition, work on clauses affecting farming is incomplete. They took up almost two days of discussion without progress Monday and Tuesday, with Prairie Conservatives demanding changes.

Gordon Ritchie (PC-Dauphin) asked Mahoney to look into a situation in which taxpayers were penalized for late payment simply because banks were late passing the payments on to the government.

Mahoney said he would.

Rod Thompson (NDP-Battleford-Kindersley) said penalty provisions in the tax bill should acknowledge the fact that the revenue department also makes mistakes.

He knew of a case where a man with the same name as another was assessed by the tax department for a herd of cattle he didn't own.

The department was insistent, Thompson said, and the man had to hire a lawyer to convince them he was not trying to hide anything.

Mahoney agreed that the situation merits looking into.

Bennett denied saying B.C. would become another California. "I said just the opposite — we must not make the same mistakes as California."

He repeated his earlier statements that a provincial election probably won't be held until 1973 unless the right issue arises earlier.

When that time comes the issue will be the same as in 1969 — "free enterprise versus communist-type socialism." He said: "We'll match our records with Sweden, Saskatchewan or Manitoba governments because where ever there are socialists there is inaction."

A Day for Remembering

That's How It Was Back in 1914

By DON COLLINS
Colonist Reporter

It had been a long time — 57 years.

But memories such as theirs die hard, if at all. And when the time came Wednesday night they stood ramrod straight, those of them who could. A couple leaned on canes. One sat.

A little later Jim McMullen, a spry 77, would make thrusting motions with his hands and beat a retreat like a boxer to tell a visitor how it had been back there in 1914.

But right now the business had to be put out of the way. The business consisted of the annual meeting of the Red Chevron Association of Vancouver Island.

90 Members

There are 90 members on the Island, men with an average age of 81 who were awarded the red chevron after seeing action in France against the Germans in 1914 with the First Canadian Expeditionary Force and the British Expeditionary Force.

The British forces, 50,000 strong, were dubbed the "contemptible little army" by the Germans and later became known proudly as the Old Contemptibles.

The years are thinning the ranks and today there are only 24 Old Contemptibles among the red chevrons on the Island.

'Old Sweats'

Used to be 48 of us just six years ago," explained 78-year-old Richard Hamilton of 1950 Ashgrove.

The meeting "brought 37 "old sweats" together on the top floor of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans' Club at 1001 Wharf and as usual was held on the eve of today's Remembrance Day.

Remembrance Day may no longer be fashionable among some of today's young, but it is still very important to these men who left so many friends behind on the battlefields of France. The Old Contemptibles, for instance, say they lost more than 50 per cent of their troops.

By Cenotaph

So they will be out there today by the cenotaph on the legislative grounds for Victoria's service. There will be chairs for those who need them. Others will march with the rest of the veterans.

"One way or another they'll all be there," said Hamilton.

Other than very brief elections, there isn't much to talk about at such annual meetings. Somebody says the association has $800 going to waste and somebody else says it should be kept and spent on a "binge" for the last three surviving members. The matter is tabled.

For Benefit

It could be used for the benefit of any red chevrons who have "fallen upon evil days." But it is pointed out that the members have all been able to "scratch up three meals a day, or are too damned proud to say they haven't."

Someone stood up in the middle of the meeting and told a joke. A second man did the same.

We will now return to business," said Hamilton, "and a motion to adjourn would be in order."

Once the meeting was out of the way the 37 got down to the important business at hand like the well-stocked bar at the end of the room, the piano that would soon be pounded and the microphone through which several old-timers would burst into song.

And, of course, the telling of stories and sharing of old war memories.

"This meeting stuff isn't really anything," said Walter Simpson, 83, of 215 Henry. "Now take me — I'm the one who has the important job here."

With that he winked and walked over to the corner of the room to serve as bartender.

Pretty soon Jim McMullen was on the mike singing songs he learned in his native Ireland. McMullen, who lives at 1011 McClure, is one of the Old Contemptibles, and he served as a regimental sergeant-major of the Royal Irish Rifles in the battles of Mons, Marne and Aisne.

McMullen moves around the floor like a young man in describing the battle of Mons for a reporter.

"They had us outnumbered 10 to one," he says. "But we stopped the bastards."

This is truly their night and they know, without saying as much, that some of them won't be back next year.

As the years go by, death takes an increasing toll. This time the men observed a minute's silence for J. C. Agnew, J. R. McIlree and F. M. (Spud) Murphy. The three had died since the last annual meeting.

"We will remember," they said in unison as they stood around the four long tables.

$53,100 Brentwood Property Once Offered Free of Cost

By JIM BRAHAN
Colonist Reporter

Sixteen years ago Central Saanich was offered an acre of Brentwood waterfront property as a gift and refused to take it. Now it is willing to pay $53,100 for the same property.

"I offered that piece of property to the municipality free in 1955 and council wouldn't take it," R. L. Desmond, 6649 West Saanich Road told the Colonist Wednesday.

"I didn't blame council for not taking it either because you couldn't even grow a carrot on it."

Desmond said he finally sold the property to an individual in 1956 for $12,000.

At the last session of council, two readings were given a bylaw to have the municipality buy the one-acre property just north of Marchant Road — for recreational purposes.

It was explained at council that the property contained a house which could be used as a senior citizens' centre.

"It (the house) is a queer kind of place and originally it was just a summer shack which has been added onto by about everybody who ever lived there," Desmond said. He bought the place in 1951.

Asked if the place would be a good spot for a senior citizens' centre, he said: "If you could park more than a half dozen cars there you would be lucky but I guess you could park some on the road."

He also warned of a fire hazard. "If somebody dropped a match the place would go up like a tinder box."

Desmond, a retired hotel owner, said he offered the property to the municipality because he thought the taxes were too high.

"I think it iniquitous for council to even consider buying that property for such an amount of money."

At council, it was explained that the money for the purchase would come from gravel sales revenue.

It was also said that the property's 270 feet of waterfront would make a good warm water beach.

"That beach is impossible. You can't do anything with it," Desmond said. "All the filth from the bay keeps washing up on it, tin cans, dead dogs, and cords and cords of driftwood."

He also said he didn't think much of the idea of the property being used as a children's park.

"Unless their mothers like washing because the land is full of burned clam, and cockle shells, and ashes," he said. "I think every potlatch the Indians had for the past 1,000 years was held on that land."

He said that even the thought of council buying the property for recreational purposes was "absurd."

The third reading of the bylaw to buy the property is expected Monday at the next meeting of council.

Currently a petition is being circulated throughout the municipality by the ratepayers association executive to have council stay the third reading of the bylaw and take the matter to referendum.

Crystal Garden Site for Reid Land

Pollen Tries Trade Route

Victoria aldermen and mayoralty candidate Peter Pollen said Wednesday the city should consider swapping the Reid property for the Crystal Garden site.

But Mayor Courtney Haddock, in a separate interview, shot down the idea saying, "I think Mr. Pollen is doing a little more waffling."

Pollen said the possibility of a swap should be put to Vancouver developer J. A. Reid.

"If we can't get Mr. Reid to scale down his proposal, let's trade him," he said.

The Reid site on Wharf Street, below Bastion Square Pollen said, consisted of about 3.7 acres, most of which (about two acres) was water.

The Crystal Garden is about 2.1 acres. "I'm sure we can work out the difference somehow," he said. The Crystal will be abandoned when the new $1.8 million new Crystal opens Nov. 27.

The area around the Crystal Garden, Pollen said, was far better suited to accommodate a development of the Reid Centre's magnitude. (Two proposals have been submitted to the city, one consisting of three apartment-hotel towers; the other of two. The towers range from 17 to 25 storeys in height).

The mayor said Pollen's suggestion had no merits. It would only add to the general confusion regarding the proposed Reid Centre.

"We have now decided to work together with the province on the Inner Harbor's future planning, and I think once the experts make their recommendations we'll be miles ahead of anything Mr. Pollen is suggesting," Haddock said.

No categorical stand, he said, should be taken on the Inner Harbor issue as long as the "question is still very much up in the air."

The Inner Harbor, the mayor said, was in "bad need of a facelift," while the area around the Crystal Garden was in excellent shape.

Ald. Harold Olafson, chairman of the city's community development committee, said he would rather not comment on Pollen's suggestion until after the Dec. 11 civic elections.

Ald. Ove Witt told the Colonist "even the craziest scheme" deserves consideration, but he couldn't really support Pollen's idea.

"It looks like a frantic, out-of-the-air-type suggestion to me, and I don't think it's too good," Witt said.

Ald. Clyde Savage, who said last week he would like to see the Crystal Garden converted into a convention centre, said he "wouldn't go for Pollen's suggestion under any circumstances."

Reid wasn't available for comment, but he told Victoria Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon meeting Tuesday he is tired of waiting for a decision from city council.

Unless council approves his plans for the Inner Harbor development, he said, his firm will build a "ghastly-looking seven-storey, box-type building" on the site.

This statement drew sharp criticism Wednesday from Pollen, Foster Isherwood and Bill Scott, all mayoralty candidates, who interpreted Reid's remarks as a threat.

Only Haddock said he didn't think Reid was threatening the city. In his opinion, the mayor said, Reid was merely "making a statement."

Central Saanich: Second Hopeful Enters Election

Longtime Central Saanich resident Stanley Bickford, 7011 West Saanich Road, announced Wednesday he will seek one of the three aldermanic seats at stake in the municipality's civic elections Dec. 11.

Bickford . . . now trustee

The 70-year-old Bickford, a retired school custodian who has lived in Central Saanich for the past 30 years, said if he is elected he will be able to devote his full time to municipal business.

He is currently a trustee of the Brentwood Waterworks District and president of the Brentwood Community Club.

Bickford is the second candidate to file nomination papers in Central Saanich. The first was Mrs. Jean Butler of 1785 Verling, who announced her candidacy last week.

Jewelry Stolen

Costume jewelry worth an estimated total of $1,000 was stolen overnight Tuesday from Val's Antiques in the Farmers Market in the 1600-block Island Highway, Colwood, Colwood RCMP reported Wednesday.

Sooke Wins Water Skirmish

Sooke residents opposing Greater Victoria Water Board's plan to switch their supply source from the clean Sooke Lake to the "dirty and polluted" Sooke River have won a skirmish, but may still lose the battle.

Water board commissioner Ron Upward told the Colonist Wednesday the board now will consider an alternative but pointed out the original plan hasn't been abandoned.

Upward said the board will study the possibility of building a 50-foot dam at Charters Creek, three miles north of Sooke. The dam would permit storage of about 12 million gallons of water, enough to supply the 750 homes concerned for about a month.

The original plan called for installation of a pumping station, chlorination plant, and small storage tank at Sooke River. The new water supply source was to replace the existing Sooke Lake one, because the 17-mile pipeline bringing water from the lake to Sooke homes was in bad shape and could break down anytime, the board said.

Upward said the board was still considering the original plan and had merely decided to study an alternative.

"If the board should opt for the dam at Charters Creek, Upward said, water would continue to be brought in through the pipeline, with the Charters reservoir acting as a reserve in case of damage to the pipeline.

But eventually, the Sooke homes concerned would be supplied exclusively from the Charters reservoir, he said.

Whatever alternative the board decides on, he said, the last word would belong to B.C. Utilities Commission. The commission would decide how much residents have to pay for the construction of the dam, estimated to cost about $450,000.

The commission could also refuse to accept the board's recommendations, whatever it might be, he said.

The estimated cost of the dam project is about $60,000 more than that of the original plan involving construction of the chlorination plant.

Upward said the study of alternatives would be completed within about six months.

A special meeting of the water board will be held Friday, and the Sooke water question is expected to be on the agenda.

WASHINGTON — For a change Washington has an incredibility gap: after a generation of losing, the Redskins are winning practically everything in sight.

In flagrant contradiction to the Nixon doctrine of the low profile, the 'Skins have six victories and a tie as against one narrow loss, to the Kansas City Chiefs, 27-20.

For thousands here this incredible turnabout has produced an era of good feelings unmatched since President Monroe went off to New England to demonstrate that the Virginia "dynasty" recognized other sections of the country too.

COMPLETE CONQUEST

George Allen's conquest of the capital is more complete than that of the British in 1812. Come to think of it, they only burned the White House, whereas he sat there in formal splendor at President Nixon's state dinner for the prime minister of Australia.

Practically unknown in Washington a year ago, Allen has become the envy of resident statesmen.

For him every day is inauguration day. The honeymoon goes on and on. Three thousand fans cheered his team off to Kansas City; 10,000 jammed the roads to Dulles International Airport to welcome the team back after it had lost.

Bi-partisanship is shot these days except in the union of Democrats and Republicans exalting George Allen.

OVATIONS EVERYWHERE

He was delayed for four minutes in ordering a steak at Duke Zeibert's restaurant the other evening by a standing ovation from the patrons who had just come from the Atomic Energy Commission, the State Department, the Battle Monuments Commission and other places of employment in the city.

President Nixon should have the public respond so obediently to his wishes. When Allen suggested that fans greet the Redskins' appearance on the field with a standing ovation every Sunday, the response was not only a standing ovation every Sunday but such an accompanying din as drowned out the names of the players being introduced over the loudspeakers.

ALLEN ACCLAIMED

A whole generation is roaring away its frustrations.

Allen is being acclaimed as a greater defensive strategist than Stonewall Jackson and a greater trader than the Federal Trade Commission.

It can only be a matter of time before his reputation for thoroughness in homework is held up as a model for the city's school children. He is said indeed to be so thorough that before the games he briefs his players on which officials call holding penalties for grabbing jerseys and pants and which hold their flags until a blocker clutches an opponent's flesh and bones.

NEW HEROES

After years of cruel suffering the fans have canonized Allen's new "Ramskins" like Myron Pottios, Richie Petitbon and Diron Talbert.

Newcomers have made a bash out of this city's historic reverence for the seniority system. After Ramskin Jack Pardee's string of interceptions in the first four games he was held in greater awe than the chairman of the house committee on merchant marine and fisheries who came to congress in 1947.

In truth the years before Allen are sad to recall. The dreary losing seasons began in old Griffith Stadium after the Second World War. Through the lean '50s, of course, there were still the memories of Sammy Baugh to bolster the fans' spirits.

As a season ticket-holder since 1954, however, I can testify that even the reverence for "Slingin' Sammy" was thin nourishment in the face of the weekly ravages by Hopalong Cassady, Johnny Unitas, Frank Gifford and Alex Webster. Alex Webster!

The Redskins, desparate for a running back in those years, landed him in the draft and promptly traded him to the New York Giants.

OPENING RUINED

After that, Washingtonians needed some bright omen, and the move to the new 50,000-seat stadium in 1961 might have been it. Alas, on the very first play after the ceremonies the Redskins fumbled the kick-off and the Giants recovered. And won.

That was how the new stadium was opened — with a Redskin' fumble, and that's about the way it was to continue for the next decade, except for one unexciting winning season (7-5-2) under the late Vince Lombardi in 1969.

The memories of those years are a mosaic of disaster.

One thinks sadly of the ball being snapped over Pat Richter's head as he went back to punt in a close game with the Baltimore Colts. And one thinks sadly, too, of Norman Snead as a rookie who on short passes could connect with nothing but the grass.

And of the day the Redskins backed Pittsburgh against the Steelers' own one-yard line only to let John Henry Johnson break through tackle for 63 yards.

FABULOUS GAME

Then that fabulous game in 1961 when in the last minute the Redskins overtook the Philadelphia Eagles, who were great in those days with Sonny Jurgensen still quarterbacking them. With the Redskins leading, there was only time enough left for three Eagle passes. Tommy McDonald carried the third one over the goalline for Philadelphia's winning points.

In those days Washington fans trembled at the two-minute warning the way children abroad had trembled at air-raid sirens. The messages were the same: bombs coming. About the only consolations fans here used to get from the two-minute warning was the reminder that the humble shall inherit the earth.

PERHAPS A GROAN

When he was coaching Cleveland, Paul Brown complained that Washington fans were some of the noisiest in the league. That was at the start of the games. There was rarely a sound as they left the stadium. Oh, perhaps a groan now and then when Bob Jencks had missed kicks, even after touchdowns.

"He has put the suspense back in the PAT," moaned Edward Bennett Williams, the club's president.

Despair produced fickleness. In the drab days when Bill McPeak was the coach, spectators brandished signs, "McPeak must go." After two years of Otto Graham the signs said, "Bring back McPeak."

PREPOSTEROUS LENGTH

The neurosis among the fans became so serious that Graham went to preposterous lengths for a remedy. Thus in 1966 when the Redskins were leading the Giants, 69-41, he rushed in Charley Gogolak in the last seconds to kick an easy field goal and make the score 72-41. The fans wallowed in revenge, though knowing all the time that the Redskins weren't going anywhere, then or in the foreseeable future.

To be sure the Redskins had some outstanding players in the losing years: Jurgensen, Charley Taylor, Jerry Smith, Vince Promuto, Gene Brito, Joe Rutgens, Len Hauss, Paul Krause, Bobby Mitchell, Sam Huff, Vic Janowicz, Chris Hanburger, Pat Fischer, Joe Walton, Bill Anderson.

COLORFUL PLAYERS

And some other very good and colorful players: Eddie Lebaron, Dick James, Sam Baker, Johnny Sample, John Oliszewski ("Johnny O"), Charlie Justice, Charley Gogolak, Hugh Taylor. But before Allen the team was never consistent.

The genesis of the Redskins' troubles was the refusal of the late owner, George P. Marshall, to hire black players, a policy that remained until Bobby Mitchell appeared in 1961. For years the fans had cheered when the band played "Dixie" and then settled back to watch Jimmy Brown, Bobby Mitchell (when he was with Cleveland), and others tear the Redskins to shreds.

They don't play "Dixie" any more.

DIFFERENT NOW

It's all different now. When Charley Taylor broke an ankle in Kansas City, many Washingtonians worried not about what would happen in the game with the New Orleans Saints the following week, but what would happen in the Super Bowl. That tells more than anything Dr. Gallup can offer about the mood of the capital these days.

Meantime, George Allen is attracting more attention than the secretary of state. This week his merest criticism of the turf at the stadium has produced a civic outcry.

His suggestion that puddles could cost the Redskins the championship evoked the spectre of waters closing over the gridiron on the fateful day. Still, most fans were sure what would happen. George would walk upon them.

Victoria Titans, runners-up last season for the Victoria Senior High Schools Rugby League championship, were crushed, 41-3, Wednesday by a speedy Oak Bay side.

Titans, who tied with Claremont Spartans in the league standings last season and just lost out in the Howard Russell Cup final, trailed, 6-18 at half time and were over-run in the second half by the fast Oak Bay back line.

Inside-centre Harry Carter raced across for the three tries and outside him winger Dave Reid sped over for another two tries.

Other tries for Oak Bay were scored by Dallas Downs, Maurice Wiart and Ian Bruce. Bruce also kicked a penalty goal and one conversion and Chris Daniels booted two conversions.

Joe Stephenson kicked a penalty for Victoria.

Claremont made it 87 points in a row without a point being scored against them when they downed Esquimalt, 27-0.

On Monday, the Spartans hammered Mount View Horners, 60-0, a score which equalled the high school league record.

Claremont led only 4-0 at half-time after a try by Russ Myers but poured on the pressure in the second-half with another try from Meyers and tries by Rod McDonald, Mike Wallace and Ben Elwell. Tim Lott converted two and kicked a penalty goal.

In the other match, Mount View used second-half pressure to sweep from a half-time lead of only 4-3 to a 16-3 win over Reynolds.

Steve Morris scored two tries for the winners and Ken Humphreys kicked one conversion. Ken Hesselgrave kicked a penalty goal for Reynolds.

New Boxla In Works

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A national lacrosse league with a format similar to that of the Canadian Football League is in the works, a Windsor lacrosse official says.

Coach Jim Bishop of Windsor Warlocks said in an interview his team and teams from Toronto and Peterborough posted $10,000 performance bonds at a formative meeting held Sunday.

Four other Ontario communities were represented at the meeting.

There would be separate with an eastern division and a four-team western division made up of teams from last year's Western Lacrosse Association Senior A league — Vancouver, Victoria, New Westminster and Coquitlam.

Two New Coaches at UVic Face Initiation to WCIAA

Two coaches get their initiation into Western Canada Inter-Collegiate Athletic Association competition Friday at University of Victoria gymnasium.

Gary Taylor's Vikings take on University of Calgary Dinosaurs in the WCIAA Men's Basketball League opener starting at 8:30 p.m. Taylor has taken over from former UVic Athletic Director Bob Bell after guiding the varsity Jayvees to second place in the Canadian junior men's championship at Windsor last spring.

Preceding that game, Mike Gallo will put his UVic Vikettes to their first test in a WCIAA Women's Basketball League opener against University of Calgary Dinnies starting at 5:30 p.m. Gallo is moving up after coaching the powerful First United juniors to several Canadian finals.

Both teams will meet the same opponents on Saturday night beginning at the same time. UVic Jayvees will take on B.C. Institute of Technology from Vancouver both days starting at 6:30 p.m.

Taylor's task is the tougher of the two. His Vikings face a taller, bigger and more experienced club which boasts centre Danny Quance, six feet eight inches, and forwards Brent Farch, six feet six, and Jim Lathrop, six feet five, all holdovers from last year's club.

Tom Child, Brent Mullins, Tom Holmes, Fergie Andison and Gord Hoshal are the only Vikings with previous WCIAA experience. Holmes and Hoshal, at six feet four inches, provide the height for Taylor's squad.

Rookies on the squad are Barry Maen, Jim Hunter, Mike Bishop, Dave Wallace, Harry Hunter and Doug Walton. Both Hunter and Walton are freshmen at UVic and are pleasant surprises for Taylor.

Vikings are allowed to carry only 10 players for away games but Taylor plans to keep all 11 on the team for at least this weekend's contests and possibly for remaining home games on the schedule.

Canadian-champion Victoria Maplettes' scheduled home opener against Seattle Sandpipers in the Senior Women's inter-City Basketball League this weekend has been postponed.

The Seattle club, new entries to the four-team league, have advised Maplettes' officials that they were unable to make the trip for Saturday and Sunday games at Central junior high school.

Key: BV — Boys' volleyball; GV — Girls' volleyball; S — Soccer. Points awarded — 25-20-15-10-8-6-4-2.

Victoria has taken the early lead in defence of the Colonist Shield, awarded to the Greater Victoria high school with the best athletic record for the school year.

Standings released by the Greater Victoria Secondary Athletic Association show Victoria with 72½ out of a possible 75 points after completion of the first three events. Mount View is in second place with 43 points, five ahead of third-place Belmont and 10 in front of fourth-place Claremont.

Victoria's boys took the maximum 50 points in volleyball and soccer, finishing first in both leagues. The Victoria girls had to settle for a first-place deadlock with Reynolds, splitting 45 points (25 for first and 20 for second).

Mount View, second in both boys' volleyball and soccer, only managed a seventh-place finish in girls' volleyball for three points. Belmont's points have been accumulated with third-place finishes in soccer and girls' volleyball and a fifth-place finish in boys' volleyball.

Still to come are competitions in rugby, basketball, badminton, track and field, swimming and cross-country.

The committee has decided that the swim meet at Colwood's Centennial Pool on Friday, Nov. 6, would not be counted for the competition. A novice meet in February will probably be used for the competition which was started last year.

If the swim meet had been counted, Mt. Douglas would have picked up 25 points for the win, Belmont would have earned 20 points for being second, Oak Bay would have gained 15 points, Esquimalt would have received 10 points, Victoria eight and Claremont six.

Except for soccer and rugby, boys' and girls' competitions will be separated, with full points awarded to each.

The cross-country competition is expected to come to a close next week.

Speeding Rangers, Fleet Canadiens Stretch Edge Over Troubled Bruins

New York's speeding Rangers and the fleet Montreal Canadiens stretched out a little on Boston Bruins Wednesday night.

Again led by the Jean Ratelle-Vic Hadfield-Rod Gilbert line, Rangers ran their unbeaten streak to 12 games and remained two points ahead of Canadiens by trampling the visiting Los Angeles Kings, 7-1.

Canadiens, who have a game in hand on the New Yorkers, outskated Toronto's hard-trying Maple Leafs, 5-2, on Toronto ice.

HAWKS TOP BRUINS

Meanwhile, the Bruins continued to have trouble in Chicago, where the Black Hawks came up with a 3-1 victory.

Results left the Bruins seven points behind Rangers in the National League's East Division and moved Chicago into the West Division lead.

Hawks got the help they needed from Detroit Red Wings, who surprised Minnesota North Stars, 2-1, on Minnesota ice.

CANUCKS BOW

In Wednesday's other game, Vancouver Canucks started a six-game road trip by losing, 1-3, when they again failed to solve the tight checking of Pittsburgh Penguins.

Gilbert, Hadfield and Ratelle continued their amazing scoring pace by producing four goals and as many assists against the overmatched Kings.

Gilbert and Hadfield both scored their 11th and 12th goals and had an assist in remaining one-two in the individual point race, which Gilbert leads, 27-25.

Gilles Villemure, who has won five times and tied twice while allowing only nine goals in his seven games this season, was three minutes and three seconds away from his first shutout when Ross Lonsberry scored.

Kings managed only 22 shots while beleagured Rogatien Vachon, playing his second game since being traded by Canadiens, faced a barrage of 41 shots.

PICTURE GOAL

In Toronto, Canadiens got another fine performance from Frank Mahovlich, who scored a picture goal, made a perfect pass to Jacques Lemaire for another goal and was selected as the game's outstanding player.

Leafs had given up a power-play goal in the ninth minute but they were holding their own in the fast up-and-down action when Mahovlich struck on a play which began deep in Montreal territory.

Jacques Laperriere fed the puck to Yvan Cournoyer and the bustling right-winger relayed it perfectly to the left board to catch the streaking Mahovlich.

TREMENDOUS SHOT

Mahovlich whizzed by Rick Ley, seemed to get in a trifle deep but just reached out and blazed a tremendous shot into the top far corner as Bernie Parent came out to cut down the angle.

It was the 15th goal in 14 games for the one-time Toronto star, and he added his fourth assist midway through the second period when he made a perfect, close-in pass to Lemaire for the 3-0 goal.

Leafs put up a sturdy battle but they lacked the depth of the Stanley Cup champions and rookie-goalkeeper Ken Dryden was quite a stumbling block.

TWO SOFT GOALS

Dryden, who has played all but one period in Canadiens' first 14 games, made several great stops but lost his third shutout because of two soft goals.

Toronto's first goal came on a shot from the blue-line by Jim Harrison, Dryden failing to get enough of the twisting puck. In the third period, Dryden steered the puck between his legs when he put his stick down to intercept a behind-the-goal passout made by Don Marshall.

Power - play goals in the second period by Bobby and Dennis Hull and the steady goalkeeping of Gary Smith were too much for the Bruins, who have lost eight consecutive league games, in a streak dating back to March 22, 1969, on Chicago ice.

STINGY AT HOME

Now 6-0 and scored on only three times on home ice this season, the Hawks got started one minute into the second period when Bobby Hull drilled a 75-footer past Gerry Cheevers.

Wayne Cashman was still serving a first-period penalty at the time, and it was John McKenzie who was watching from the penalty box when Dennis Hull took Stan Mikita's pass late in the period to score from 15 feet.

Smith, 6-1 in the seven full games he has played for the Hawks, got great support in making it enough. He was beaten by Mike Walton on a power play early in the third period but Bruins got only six shots on goal in the last 20 minutes and Cliff Koroll provided a cushion at 8:26 by getting his sixth goal of the season.

Twice losers and twice tied since changing coaches, the Wings turned in a crisp-checking game and got excellent goaling from Al Smith to give Johnny Wilson his first victory.

Smith kicked out 32 shots, and Detroit's first goal came as the result of one of his better stops.

Canucks got the first goal at Pittsburgh, then had their offence interrupted often by the need for penalty-killing. They played shorthanded for almost 12 minutes in the first two periods and stayed close only because the Pittsburgh power-play lacked punch.

Penguins got the 1-1 goal on a first-period power play, won it on third-period goals by Bryan Hextall and Greg Polis.

Exhibition Starts Busy Rugby Days

Victoria Over-25s will play Victoria Under-25s in an exhibition match at 3 p.m. at Macdonald Park today to open four busy days of rugby for city fans and players.

Selector-coach of the Over-25 squad is Alan Rees of the Castaways and Don Burgess of Oak Bay Wanderes is handling the Under-25 team.

In a preliminary match at 1:30 p.m., Occasionals, a team of former stars who turn out for exhibitions, will play the Victoria Junior All-Stars.

Both matches are being considered as "unofficial" trials by the Victoria Rugby Union to select city teams.

Also today, a rather unusual rugby team comes to Vancouver Island.

It's a high school side from 100 Mile House, making a series of exhibition appearances throughout British Columbia before leaving on a tour of Britain.

Unique as it comes from an area where no other rugby is played, 100 Mile House has already beaten the highly-rated McGee High School in Vancouver.

Apparently "green" and unorthodox as far as experience and style goes, the 100 Mile House team plays a fast, entertaining game and will certainly get a stiff test on the Island.

Today the opponents will be Brentwood College. On Friday they meet Claremont, the defending Victoria Senior High Schools champions, and on Saturday they play James Bay Athletic Association's Under-19 side.

On Saturday, eight players from Victoria will take part in trials at Vancouver's Brockton Oval to pick a B.C. side to play Australia at Swangard Stadium, Burnady, on Dec. 4.

The eight are forwards Gaither Zinkan and Rob Hindson of UVic Vikings, Mike Morgan, John Wenman and Rob Iverson of Oak Bay Wanderers, and backs Dave Slater, Tom Browne and Gillie Greig, all of Castaways.

Cliff Yorath, Castaways' fullback, and Pete Simmons, a second-row forward from James Bay, were also selected to go but Yorath was unavailable and Simmons is nursing an injury.

And, for those not in the trials, there will be the usual Victoria Rugby Union league matches Saturday and Sunday.

Eagles Sign Williams

CLEVELAND (AP) — Former Philadelphia Eagles' head coach Jerry Williams was hired as an offensive backfield coach by Cleveland Browns Tuesday.

Williams, former coach of Calgary Stampeders, was fired Oct. 5 by Eagles' owner Leonard Tose after the team lost its first three games. He was replaced by Ed Khayat.

Browns' owner Art Modell said Williams was hired at the urging of head coach Nick Skorich to fill the void left by the death of offensive backfield coach Howard "Sonny" Keys on Oct. 21.

Mt. Newton Colt XV Wins

Mt. Newton defeated St. Michael's University School, 16-10, in a Colts exhibition rugby match at University School Tuesday.

Derek Scott scored two tries and winger Tom Mitchell sprinted 80 yards for a try as Mt. Newton came from a 6-10 deficit at half time for the win. Dave Newton converted two of the tries.

A Junior Colts game was won, 26-0, by St. Michael's University School.

Statistics Show Little To Choose Between Rival in CFL Finals

TORONTO (CP) — Statistical comparisons of teams heading into Canadian Football League playoffs this weekend fail to show any team with much of an advantage.

The comparisons based on the three games played this season between Calgary Stampeders and Saskatchewan Roughriders and between Toronto Argonauts and Hamilton Tiger-Cats were prepared by the CFL.

Saskatchewan is at Calgary Saturday in the first game of their best-of-three Western Conference final. Sunday, Toronto is at Hamilton in the start of their two-game total-points Eastern Conference match.

The Stampeders and Roughriders split their three-game season series, each winning one game and tying the other.

Statistics of their three games show the Roughriders with a 435-286 edge in rushing yardage, but the Stampeders had the advantage in passing with 530 yards to 462.

The Stampeders outscored the Roughies, 45-31.

TICATS HAD EDGE

Hamilton took two games from Toronto and outscored the Argos, 67-55.

Toronto, however, held the edge in offensive power with 471 yards rushing and 578 by passing. The Ticats managed only 303 yards on the ground against Toronto and 461 yards passing.

But the Hamilton defence covered up by intercepting 10 Argo passes and returned two of them for touchdowns. Toronto picked off seven Ticat passes and converted only one into a touchdown.

The Ticat defence also collected two touchdowns out of seven Argo fumbles while Toronto picked up only three Hamilton fumbles and didn't score with any of them.

Calgary and Saskatchewan quarterbacks each gave up five interceptions. The Stampeders lost two fumbles while the Roughriders lost one, but neither team scored on any of the turnovers.

Annual Uplands Tourney Today

The weather will be about the same but the name of the champion in today's Remembrance Day tournament at Uplands Golf Club will be different.

The club's records show that it was "cold and wet" when Jerry Koster won it last year. Koster, who has moved to Courtenay, isn't back to defend his title.

Starting at 8 a.m., 148 will tee off within a space of four hours and 12 minutes.

Liggins Ailing

CALGARY (CP) — Granville Liggins, one of the crack guards on the Calgary Stampeder offensive line, is ailing with stomach problems. He has lost six pounds in the last few days and has been undergoing extensive medical tests to determine the cause.

Liggins has continued to practice with the team but there was no indication whether he would play against Saskatchewan Roughriders Saturday in the opening game of the best-of-three Western Football Conference final.

Mazda 1600 sedan. $2569.* And you thought economy meant compromise.

It's the things you don't have to give up that make the Mazda 1600 c.c. Sedan. Like driving. You can go all day without aching in your bones. Or in your pocketbook.

The Mazda 1600 is the most comfortable car in the class. It has a longer wheelbase. A wider stance. And the finest suspension system at any price.

For performance, the overhead cam piston engine is tough and efficient. You can climb mountains and cross prairies without strain. And you'll get top mileage on regular gas.

You don't have to give up on the interior. The Mazda 1600 is luxurious and roomy. With body contoured bucket seats. Wall-to-wall carpeting. Padded dash and fine instrumentation. And a back seat with plenty of legroom.

And unlike a lot of imports the Mazda 1600 Sedan doesn't give up on the outside. It's graceful with lines that flow instead of angles that jar. So it doesn't look like you're driving a bargain.

You could buy a lot of little cars for less. If you don't mind a lot of little compromises. Or you could buy a Mazda 1600 Sedan.

Canada works when we work together.

The Federal Government is putting 498 million dollars to work, through a series of specific programs, to help create jobs for Canadians. This message is designed to give you program details.

WORKING TOGETHER WITH THE INDIVIDUAL

We're encouraging you to act on your own initiative or through local government, local organizations and service groups to come up with ideas for our Local Initiatives Program. For example, your community may wish to develop services for the handicapped, or elderly, or a day care centre, or a new skating rink, or any number of things that will make your community a better place.

There's also a Training-on-the-Job Program that will work through business and industry to expand opportunities for those who are unemployed or have little work experience.

If you have some basic experience, we've extended the Canada Manpower Training Program to help provide you with additional learning.

WORKING TOGETHER WITH BUSINESS AND INDUSTRY

There's a program of tax incentives or direct payments to employers to encourage them to add trainees to their staffs through the Training-on-the-Job Program. This will help the trainee get work experience that he can use in many jobs.

WORKING TOGETHER WITH THE MUNICIPALITIES

The foundation of all municipal activity is the previously mentioned Local Initiatives Program. This will help you support and spur community projects that will give jobs to people in your community who find themselves unemployed.

WORKING TOGETHER WITH THE PROVINCES

Obviously, the municipal Local Initiatives Program will tie in closely with the Provinces. So will our Special Development Loans Program that will finance new capital works projects. We'll be speeding up mortgage approvals through the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation to get homes, student housing and sewage treatment projects under way.

We also will be making loans to exhibition commissions, boards and associations to get you working on multi-purpose fair and trade buildings.

WORKING TOGETHER WITH FEDERAL WORKS

On our level, we'll be working to give you more job opportunities on maintenance and improvement activities on Federal buildings; transportation facilities; forest and park projects; and many others.

WHERE IT ALL WORKS TOGETHER

The job starts at your Canada Manpower Centre. For advice and assistance on any of the programs that you feel apply to you or your community, contact your local Canada Manpower Centre. They'll be happy to help you with all the information they have.

When Canadians get involved together, Canada works.

Blacks Awarded $42,000

Town Killed Shop

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — The mayor, police chief and city council of sand city have been ordered to pay $42,000 in damages to two black mechanics they drove out of business.

A six-member federal court jury unanimously agreed that the town officials share in paying the judgment to Melvin Williams, 36, and Brady Avery, 48, who operated a shop in the tiny central California coastal community in 1968.

The two mechanics contended during the civil rights trial that the city put up "no parking" signs in front of their shop that were so strictly enforced by police chief Frank Zabrogski that it was impossible for prospective customers to stop there.

The shop eventually closed and the two men left the city of 681 persons.

The jury assessed the penalty against mayor Philip Calabrese, Zabrowski and council members Pearl Pendergrass, Mark Meadows, Ellis Potter, and Wilson Oliver.

Name of Game: Early Closures

Abnormal weather conditions and an early breeding season are the reasons for early closing dates for various types of game announced Wednesday by the B.C. fish and wildlife branch.

Spokesman George Ferguson said these two factors had enabled hunters to harvest the desired number of deer and elk earlier than normally.

The seasons were ended to allow a reasonable escapement of animals for 1972, he said, and all closures start this Sunday.

The antler-less season on both mule and white-tail deer in Management Area 7 (Similkameen), the elk season in Area 9 (Big Bend) and the elk season in Area 11 (East Kootenay) will end two weeks early.

The season on anter-less deer in Area 11 also closes Sunday instead of Nov. 21.

U.S. Imports More

OTTAWA (UPI) — Canadian exports to the United States increased 3 per cent in October despite expectations that the U.S. 10-per-cent surcharge on imports would have had a serious impact two months after its imposition Aug. 15.

Statistics Canada reported that seasonally adjusted exports to the United States in October were $1.06 billion, compared to $1.03 billion the previous month and $943 million in October, 1970.

The monthly increase of $35 million in exports to the United States accounted for all of the $28 million increase in total Canadian exports and offset a $7 million decline in non-U.S. shipments. Total Canadian exports for the month were estimated at $1.55 billion.

Compared to October, 1970, the $124 million increase in exports to the United States also accounted for all the annual growth in Canadian exports, which grew 6 per cent or $87 million over the year.

The U.S. 10-per-cent surcharge affected about $2.5 billion worth of Canadian exports to the United States, mostly manufactured goods. Automobiles and raw materials were excluded from the surcharge.

TV Guardians Will Converge on Victoria

By BRUCE LOWTHER
Colonist Reporter

The men and women who determine the rules for all broadcasting in Canada — members of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission — will hold their first hearing in Victoria in March.

A CRTC official in Ottawa confirmed Wednesday the commission will hold one of its regular hearings at Empress Hotel, starting March 14. He said no special Vancouver Island matters are expected to be on the agenda and the meeting may last from one to three days.

The official explained the CRTC holds many of its meetings in Ottawa but tries to hold others across Canada, dealing with routine applications from the area where each meeting is held. Matters at the Victoria hearing, he said, would involve B.C. and Prairie stations.

The CRTC has met several times in Vancouver but has never held a regular session on Vancouver Island.

Members of the public may appear before CRTC provided they follow certain rules of procedure such as submitting written briefs in advance. Normal CRTC policy is to publish these rules in newspaper advertisements several weeks before a hearing.

The CRTC official also disclosed the commission recently granted a licence renewal to Victoria Cablevision Ltd. until March 31, 1976. The statement of approval carried a statement, routine for such renewals, that specific conditions might be added later.

The announcement removed fears that special restrictions might be ordered for the largest cable system in Greater Victoria which could black out programs on channels.

The statement of approval means Victoria Cablevision will be subject to CRTC rules applied to all Canadian cable systems. Cablevision president and general manager Les Curran said when those rules were issued last summer he felt sure there would be no such blackouts.

It was the fear of blackouts which caused Saanich resident Richard Reeve to circulate a protest petition last year. About 10,000 Greater Victorians signed the petition which was delivered to the government for consideration before the new cable rules came out during the summer.

'Civil Liberties Set Aside'

Law Held Inhumane

OTTAWA (CP) — Welfare law in Canada seems to be "routinely inhumane," says the report of the Senate poverty committee.

Tabled Wednesday in the Senate, the report says welfare law is restricted to the poor and in most places has resisted attempts to change it.

It was unique in "setting to one side the common safeguards of civil liberties, especially the presumption of innocence before guilt is judicially proven."

Although police had to secure a judicial warrant before entering the home of even a dangerous criminal, welfare recipients routinely signed documents allowing welfare officials continuing access to their homes.

In some places a welfare recipient could have his benefits revoked without a hearing and without being told why the action was taken.

"The welfare appeal boards usually contain people who have served in provincial or municipal welfare departments, and these boards occasionally act in a curiously self-protective say."

The report says the legal system as a whole also discriminates in some ways against the poor.

A poor man convicted of a crime and offered the choice of a jail term or a fine was more likely to go to jail. After a prison term, the poor man was less likely to find a job.

A rich man could use the bail system in court but a poor man, unable to raise enough cash or property, stayed in jail.

"The situation is especially disgraceful when charges are dropped for lack of evidence. The man who has put up bail and is reimbursed is no worse off, while the poor man endures real punishment when no crime has been committed."

The committee report says poor Canadians have a right to adequate legal aid on a non-contributory basis. Substantial improvements required federal initiative, especially the infusion of federal funds into a program for legal aid across the country.

But the report recommended that the provinces should be responsible for the administration of legal aid.

Tax System Giveway Questioned

OTTAWA (CP) — The report of the Senate poverty committee says it is untrue that the tax system takes from the rich to give to the poor.

The report, released Wednesday, says 60 per cent of the incomes of persons earning less than $2,000 including social security contributions, is spent on taxes.

"By contrast, those with incomes over $10,000 pay only 37 per cent in taxes," it says.

Society penalized and stigmatized those who earned little or no money. But at the same time, it gave them little chance to succeed. Some fiscal and monetary policies had resulted in greater hardships for the poor, especially the working poor, than for the rest of the population.

The report said "full employment" must be the prime objective of government policy.

Welfare Setup 'A Morass'

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator David Croll, chairman of the Senate poverty committee, Wednesday called the existing welfare system "a social wasteland and an economic morass."

Tabling the committee's report, he said more than $6 billion a year has been poured into it without reaping more than meagre returns.

"We say it must be scrapped because it is obsolete, lacking in regard for human values, and unable to alleviate poverty, let alone eliminate it. It has no defenders, only offenders."

He proposed instead, as had been widely expected, a guaranteed income system for the poor.

Senator Croll, 71, is a former Windsor, Ont., mayor and a Toronto Liberal. He was a member of the Ontario legislature from 1934 to 1944, including a period as welfare minister in the Mitchell Hepburn administration.

He said Wednesday that time and again at its public hearings the Senate committee saw "grim evidence of a well-meaning society's failure to grasp the true significance of poverty and its cancerous effect not only on the individual but on the whole community.

"We fashioned a social welfare machine, lubricated it with our dollars, and then turned our back on its operation.

"We insulated ourselves from any misgivings by implicit belief in the myths about poverty. The poor don't want to work, we said; they are lazy and content to live on handouts; they are chronic complainers . . .

"The committee emphatically rejects these false and long-held assumptions."

Sixty per cent of the poor were not on welfare.

The existing system had failed because it had treated the symptoms of poverty and left the disease itself untouched. It did not reach the working poor, "that vast army in the labor force whose income is grossly insufficient."

Gougers Target

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal action to prevent landlords gouging the poor was recommended Wednesday by the Senate poverty committee.

One suggested way would be through purchase of older but structurally sound homes to be rented at cost or subsidized rates to low income families.

Assistance Project 'Less Than Hoped'

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canada Assistance Plan, heralded in 1966 as the major weapon in the war on poverty, has failed to live up to expectations, says the Senate poverty committee.

The federal government intended the plan to ensure "that every Canadian who needed welfare or social assistance receive it in adequate amounts."

It "seemed to provide the machinery for substantial federal involvement in the fight against poverty, or at least the encouragement and backing for a fight against poverty."

"What resulted, however, was less than the federal planners had hoped," says the report made public Wednesday.

Guaranteed Income

'Not Right Answer'

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — The president of the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants said Wednesday Canadians must reassess their commitments to redistribution of wealth, and to relations between provinces and with the United States.

Frank Capon, speaking at a chamber of commerce meeting, said a guaranteed annual income is not necessarily the answer for Canada's poor.

He said unemployment is the direct result of the worker pricing himself out of the labor market as industry turns to technology, replacing workers with machines.

Redistribution of wealth means that the state takes from its most productive workers and gives to the less productive, he said. This violates basic human freedoms and incentives.

Chess Tourney Forms First For Association

Some of the best chess players in the Pacific Northwest will converge on Victoria Saturday and Sunday.

The occasion is the season's first official B.C. Chess Association tournament—the Southern Vancouver Island Open.

The event, which eventually leads to the B.C. championship next spring, will be held at Silver Threads Chess Club, Centennial Square, with registration Saturday at 9 a.m.

Three rounds will follow that day with two more Sunday. Among those expected to play: B.C. champion Peter Biyiasas, former provincial champ Bob Zuk, B.C. junior aces Jonathan Berry and Bruce Harper, all from Lower Mainland, plus an array of Vancouver Island and Seattle stars.

Victoria will likely be represented by such young stars as Danny Scoones, Darrel Hunt and Harold Brown, as well as former Northwest master Gerry Lassen of University of Victoria.

'Buy Thetis Land'

Conservation Groups Tossed Ball

Victoria Ald. Clyde Savage said Wednesday the Beacon Hill Park Association and other conservation groups should launch a fund drive for the purchase of 245 acres of land slated for a subdivision, next to Thetis Lake Park.

An association spokesman, however, called the suggestion "unacceptable."

The property in question is part of the Thetis Lake watershed, immediately north of the city-owned 1,100-acre park. An application for subdivision of the land into 10-acre lots is at present being considered by the provincial highways department.

Savage said in an interview if the public was "that anxious" to purchase the property, people would gladly donate money to a fund.

Mrs. Bernice Packford, president of the Beacon Hill Park Association, said she finds it "singular, indeed, when aldermen forget that environmental groups are taxpayers."

Members of such groups, she said, through federal, provincial and municipal taxes, contribute funds to manage public enterprises, including parks.

"To ask environmental groups to buy parkland close to the city at prevailing subdivision prices is unacceptable," Mrs. Packford said.

Careful revision of the city's capital works budget, she said, might reveal that "perhaps the $200,000 for street widening projects may be a good start for the acquisition of the land."

Senator Flays U.S. 'Blindness'

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Senator William Spong (Dem.-Va.), decrying a "continuing blindness" of the United States to the needs of Canada, suggests the state department should upgrade its top Canadian-affairs of-

Spong said in a Senate speech Tuesday he is "making inquiries" to the state department and to the Nixon administration about a possible change.

The state department currently has five assistant secretaries — one each for African affairs, East Asian and Pacific affairs, European affairs, Inter-American affairs and Near Eastern and South Asian affairs. Under what Spong called "questionable policy," Canadian relations are handled by a country director under the assistant secretary for European affairs.

Spong said there are "reasons and excuses" for actions that the United States or Canada sometimes must take in their own national interests, especially in the touchy economic sphere.

"But there is little reason or excuse for a continuing blindness to the situation north of our borders," he said. "Continuation of a course of blindness, could, I believe, be both dangerous and detrimental to our nation."

He said the United States should have "been more sensitive" to Canadian problems when Nixon began his new economic program that entails in part a 10-per-cent import surcharge.

He noted Canada is "by far our largest trading partner," with the $20 billion in Canada-U.S. trade yearly far overshadowing the trade of either nation with any other country.

"In view of this, it appears that some of the concern over the effect of the economic measures on Japan and Western Europe have been misplaced; that greater attention might be given to the repercussions in Canada, which with a 7.1-per-cent unemployment is having its own financial problems . . .," Spong said.

Joey May Resign

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Premier Joseph Smallwood may announce his Liberal government's resignation tonight in a scheduled television appearance, but some observers believe he'll wait hoping recounts will retrieve some ground lost to the Progressive Conservatives in the Oct. 28 provincial election.

Conservative Leader Frank Moores announced Wednesday that Tom Burgess, a fomrer Liberal now heading the New Labrador Party, would support the Conservatives in the 42-seat legislature.

If recounts are held and produce no changes Burgess' move would allow Moores to enter the house with a majority of one after appointing a Speaker.

Moores said Burgess would remain a New Labrador Party member and would not sit in the Tory caucus.

Smallwood's Liberal party, in power since he led Newfoundland into Confederation in 1949, won 20 seats in the election.

The Conservatives took 21 and Burgess was returned in Labrador West.

Plea Halts Freeway

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — The conservationist Sierra Club has persuaded a federal judge to halt construction of two controversial San Francisco Bay area freeways on the ground they would damage the environment.

Judge Robert Peckham of the United States district court, Tuesday ordered work stopped indefinitely on the 14-mile Foothill Freeway, State Route 238, that would run through the East Bay cities of Hayward, Union City and Fremont.

Bridge Collapses

COBLENZ, Germany (UPI) — Part of a new bridge being built over the River Rhine collapsed into the river Wednesday, blocking traffic along Europe's biggest waterway.

Police said at least 12 workers were feared killed and 18 injured when the collapse plunged them about 56 feet into the river among the falling masonry.

Sanctions Extension Passes

LONDON (UPI) — The British Parliament approved Wednesday night the extension of economic sanctions against Rhodesia for another year even as the government prepared for last ditch peace talks with the white rulers of the breakaway former African colony.

Both the House of Commons and House of Lords approved the government motion without dissent. No vote was taken.

Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home planned to fly to Rhodesia Sunday in a last bid to agree on terms under which Britain could recognize Rhodesian independence and call off sanctions.

Rhodesia's white minority government proclaimed independence unilaterally on Nov. 11, 1965, after failure to agree with Britain on a new constitution that ultimately would give power to the country's black Africans.

Provincial COURT

Victoria police gave a 20-year-old member of the armed forces a break early Wednesday but he didn't take advantage of it—and that cost him $450 in Victoria Provincial Court.

Donald Joseph Cronin, HMCS Columbia, pleaded guilty to a two-count charge of impaired driving and driving while his licence was under suspension, and was fined $300 on the first count and $150 on the second by Judge Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre.

Prosecutor J. W. Anderson said police stopped Cronin's car in the downtown area at about 1:40 a.m. and told him he was too drunk to drive and should take a taxi home. Ten minutes later, they saw him driving nearby, stopped him and discovered his licence was suspended due to an unsatisfactory driving record.

For Cronin's impaired driving, the judge added a six-month driving ban.

□

Norman Daigle, 42, of 614 Yates, was sentenced by St. Jorre to a total of six months in jail after pleading guilty to a two-count Victoria charge of theft involving less than $50. The charges concerned a $10 radio stolen about Oct. 20 from Kent's, 742 Fort, and a $34 cassette recorder stolen about Oct. 23 from City Photo Centre, 1227 Government. Daigle admitted a criminal record dating back to 1948.

□

Bruce Kevin Nodwell, 21, no fixed address, was sentenced to a total of four months in jail after pleading guilty Sept. 28 to a two-count Victoria charge of theft over $50 and breaking and entering and theft. The charge involved a car stolen about Sept. 25 from Speedway Motors, 971 Yates, and a break-in about Sept. 22 at Nippon Cyclemart, 900 Government, where a 10-speed bicycle was stolen.

□

Burke Wesley Mullins, 44, of 64 San Jose, said he hadn't realized the severity of the penalty — a maximum of 10 years in prison — when he pleaded guilty Oct. 28 to a Victoria charge of making a threatening phone call Oct. 26 to a U.S. official in Vancouver. He asked for Legal Aid and said he may change the plea. St. Jorre put the case over to next Wednesday.

□

Dec. 28 was set as the date for a preliminary hearing of a charge against Gordon Allen McLaughlin, 53, of 1355 Lyall, of setting fire Oct. 24 to the Club 44 building, CFB Esquimalt. McLaughlin elected trial by judge and jury if the matter goes beyond the hearing.

□

David Lannigan, 45, of 342 Island Highway, was sentenced to 21 days in jail following his plea of guilty to a charge of impaired driving Tuesday in Oak Bay and was given a nine-month driving ban. Anderson said Lannigan had a similar conviction about 11 months ago.

□

Robert Ernest Mills, 45, of Surrey, pleaded guilty to a charge of being impaired while in care or control of a vehicle Thursday in Victoria. He was fined $300 and given a partial six-month driving ban.

□

William George Grove, 18, of Sooke, was fined $250 after he pleaded guilty to a charge of possession of marijuana Tuesday in Victoria. one half-ounce bag found when he was stopped in a parking lot on Wharf Street.

□

A fine of $50 was set for Greg Barnes, 20, of 279 Rudyard, who pleaded guilty to a charge of common assault about Oct. 22 in the Colwood area. Anderson said Barnes suspected some 14-year-old boys of lighting a copper pipe bomb on View Royal school grounds and threw one against a wall, breaking his glasses and tearing his coat, then banged two of the boys' heads together.

□

In the court section of Judge E. F. N. Robinson, Terrance William Ryan, 25, of 647 Ralph, was found guilty following a trial on a charge of possession of heroin for the purpose of trafficking and was remanded to Nov. 19 for a presentence report and sentence.

Testimony showed the charge involved 49 capsules found Sept. 30 when Ryan was stopped at a bus stop near the Wooden store as he returned from a trip to Vancouver.

War Expert To Talk At UVic

Dr. E. W. Pfeiffer, a U.S. specialist in chemical and biological warfare, will speak at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Student Union building at University of Victoria.

Pfeiffer has made four trips to Indochina in the last three years. The most recent was in August this year when with the co-operation of the U.S. Army, he studied the effects of defoliation, carpet bombing, concussion bombing and the massive land-clearing programs.

With the aid of the U.S. air force he made films from helicopters which he will show during his lecture.

Pfeiffer has also studied the problems of refugees and pollution in Indochina. His program is sponsored by UVic Alma Mater Society.

Seventh Time in Two Years

School Funds Shot Again

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (UPI) — For the seventh time in two years, voters Tuesday rejected a tax hike to finance schools. The schools in this Kansas City suburb, home of former President Harry Truman, stayed closed Wednesday for the 12th straight day.

"This is a black mark against America," school board member Joe Peters said. "It's sickening."

The school board closed the system to the city's 17,000 students, after classes Oct. 29, saying there was not enough money in the budget to pay faculty salaries.

The 95-cent tax increase, which needed a two-thirds majority to go into effect, was soundly defeated Tuesday, 9,107 against the measure to 8,846 in favor. It was the worst defeat in the seven votes going back two years.

But less than two weeks ago, voters approved spending $2 million for a new police building in the city.

The board met in emergency session late Tuesday and voted to reopen schools for the period Nov. 15-Dec. 15, using a special state aid payment expected Dec. 15 to pay faculty salaries.

The board had planned to reopen classes Wednesday, on the assumption voters would pass the 95-cent tax increase asked for.

It would have increased taxes on the average homeowner by about $61 a year.

"It's almost unbelievable," said Supt. Guy Carter. "We have an obligation to reopen the schools. But we face more trouble down the line."

Truman and his wife Bess, both 87, were among the voters in the largest turnout ever for a school vote. Truman, who 73 years ago worked to help pass a school bond issue, waited in the car and marked a paper ballot brought to him by his bodyguard and chauffeur, Paul Westwood.

You don't need a big car, but you don't want to go mini.

Plymouth's got the answer:

'72 SATELLITE

Why drive around a lot of empty space if you never use it?

That's the whole idea behind Plymouth's mid-size Satellite. You get the kind of room you actually need with the comfort and conveniences you're used to.

One name—but two cars

Satellite is actually two different kinds of cars. Hardtops and Sedans.

A Satellite hardtop is built on a 115" wheelbase. It's clean, bold and one of the most modern examples of automotive styling you'll see on the road, anywhere.

A Satellite sedan, on the other hand, is built on a 117" wheelbase. So there's a little more room in the back. And that's why you choose a sedan.

Surprisingly enough, no other auto manufacturer has designed separate hardtops and sedans in the same carline. Usually, one is a version of the other. And something suffers.

But haven't we forgotten something?

Station wagons. Well, since room is the name of the game, Satellite wagons are built on the larger 117" wheelbase. Then, they're given their very own body shell...a standard 318 V8 engine and a tailgate door that you can open without lowering the window first. Just like any other door. And when you've got the rear seat down, you can put a 4 x 8 sheet of plywood flat on the floor. You used to have to get a full-size wagon to get that kind of roominess, but not any more.

A Satellite that goes "beep beep"

Road Runner is back . . . gutsier than ever, for you who like very spirited performance. A 400 cube, 4-bbl V8 is standard. Like a little less? Order the 340. More? Try the 440.

The other Satellites come with a 225 Six or the 318 V8 as standard engines. And of course you can specify the 400 CID V8 and other things like power disc brakes, automatic transmission, power steering, AM/FM stereo radio or air conditioning.

Ask the questions

This week, go see your Local Plymouth dealer and take a demonstration drive in a Plymouth Satellite. Take your time. Ask lots of questions. Find out everything you want to know. Then you'll be able to make a sound, logical decision that you can really enjoy for the next few years.

Anderson vs. Victoria

Zoning Idea Flayed

Discriminatory zoning of federal property that Victoria wants for a park would be neither honest nor honorable, Esquimalt-Saanich MP David Anderson has told Victoria city hall.

The admonition came in a letter this week from Anderson to the chairman of the Victoria lands committee.

The land referred to is a 3.77-acre waterfront lot at both sides of Sea Terrace west of Barnard, Victoria West.

The property has been put on the auction block by the federal government's Crown Assets Disposal Corp. Asking price is $165,000.

Victoria has been negotiating unsuccessfully to have the land transferred to the city for nothing or at a nominal price.

Last week, Victoria's lands committee recommended to council that the lot in question be rezoned to single-family residence from the present multiple-family designation.

The current zoning permits highrise construction.

Anderson said in his letter that he would "have no objection to this course of action, provided that the zoning is not discriminatory. In other words, if apartments are banned on all harbor waterfront property and all properties adjacent to the Sea Terrace property are zoned in a similar manner . . . but discriminatory zoning hardly seems the honest or the honorable approach."

UVic Dean Hits at Tenure

Education faculty Dean Hugh Farquhar strongly criticized University of Victoria's tenure document at a meeting of UVic Senate Wednesday night.

Speaking in a report to the senate, Farquhar said that "among the things that disturb our faculty most is the question of tenure."

The university's tenure document emphasizes the research, publications and field work of a professor at the expense of teaching, he said, because these can be measured quantitatively.

"When I returned to the faculty of education last summer I encountered a strong antipathy to administrative functions," Farquhar said. "Anybody who volunteered was a sucker, because there are no rewards for this kind of work.

"The tenure document has no mention of such activities," he continued. "The feeling persists that there is no recognition for such work.

"How can we develop leadership if the tenure document does not encourage, and even discourages such activities?" he asked.

"I believe that tenure is an academic thermostat that was crucial to the development of the university.

"If we don't have academic planning, we'll lose by default," he concluded.

Academic tenure has been a topic of controversy for some time at UVic.

The university and the Canadian Association of University Teachers have been locked in a verbal battle over the denial of tenure to three staff members, Dr. William Goede of the English department, Dr. Tikam Jain of the chemistry department and Toby Graff of the philosophy department.

In other business the senate passed a motion in favor of an overseas course in Political Science 480.

The course, which will be open only to honors students in political science, will take place in Africa during the months of May and June.

The students will visit New York and Rio de Janeiro, and then spend two weeks in South Africa, one week in Portuguese East Africa, four to five days in Malawi, and three weeks in Tanzania, Kenya and Ethiopia.

Some senate members objected to the course because they thought it would provide extra costs for the taxpayer, but acting chairman of the summer session committee Dr. J. B. MacLean said that the students would be paying for the extra costs themselves.

The only other additional cost was $450 to pay for lectures to be given by nine university faculty members at the centres visited.

The course will be given in May and June, said MacLean, because "the greater part of Africa is unbearable for study at any other time of the year," because of the oppressive climate.

Students will be required to write a term paper and a final exam for the course, which will be under the supervision of Dr. Edgar Effrat, associate professor in the political science department.

The senate also approved a new scholarship, the Dr. Norman Bethune Memorial Award, presented to the university by W. A. Scott.

An annual award of $50 will be given to a third or fourth year student in the department of geography for high standing in Geography 464, a course on China, in memory of Dr. Norman Bethune, who won international recognition for his work as a surgeon in China.

But Ovation Warm

Osipov on Ice

By BILL THOMAS
Colonist Reporter

The Osipov Balalaika Orchestra was afforded a warm but slim ovation Wednesday in chilly Memorial Arena.

The thin sounds of the string ensemble floated up into the roofing and the cold seeped up through the boards over the ice. It was a pity the musical director hadn't been warned about it. He could have played Borodin's In the Steppes of Central Asia.

Star of the show was Yuri Gulyaev, a soloist with the Kiev Opera. His interpretation of Stenka Rasin was particularly well received by the audience and he was brought back for an encore after singing Along the Petersky Way. His deep voice is full of warmth and he has a fine control.

The dancers, Lili Novgorodova and Yury Mironov gave two solos and were warmly applauded. Dancing was complemented with traditional costumes.

Instrumental solos came from Anatoly Tichonov and Alexander Tzigankov.

The orchestra under the direction of Victor Dubrovsky is a precision instrument that would certainly have been completely enchanting under more favorable circumstances. But the music got lost in the echo-chamber of the arena.

Dubrovsky produces a remarkable tonal effect from the balalaikas which enables him to offer a wide selection of music from both the folk and classical literature.

In the area of folk music singer Ludmilla Zykina was outstanding. She has a fine range and is also capable of sensitive reading. Her great lyrical quality entranced the audience.

The first visit of the Osipov orchestra was an undoubted success.

Nine years later he started taking dancing lessons to get some regular exercise and ward off the aging process. It evidently worked. Pilot 30 Years with Air Canada

Royal Flight Crowns Career

By Barbara McLintock
Colonist Reporter

After more than 30 years as an Air Canada pilot, Capt. David Moir still finds life anything but dull.

Now Air Canada flight operations director for Western Canada, Moir still gets in plenty of flying — in DC-8s to Great Britain, Europe and Eastern Canada.

And when something special comes along — such has the royal tour of B.C. earlier this year, Mois is right in the middle of things.

He flew the royal party from England to Vancouver and back last May.

Moir said his crew brought the royal party into Vancouver airport within five seconds of their estimated arrival time.

He said that, while flying the aircraft was no different than the usual piloting of a DC-8, there were differences in circumstances surrounding the flight.

Most noticeable, he said, was the extremely tight security surrounding the 9½-hour flight. Ground security was very strict and there was even tighter control than usual on what radio messages might be sent.

The royal jet was accompanied by military escort aircraft throughout the flight, he said.

Over Britain, the Royal Air Force escorted the plane. Over Greenland, Iceland and the middle Atlantic, they were replaced by the U.S. Air Force, and the Canadian air force took over at the North American boundaries.

Moir
. . . in middle

Although a normal DC-8 aircraft was used he said the interior was completely remodelled. Many of the seats were replaced with beds to enable the royal family to rest.

The greatest problem, he said, was to touch the plane down at exactly 11:30 a.m. Vancouver time. This was necessary partly for security reasons, partly because of the tightness of the itineracy.

To make it exactly on time, "we cheated a little," he said.

They arrived over Vancouver five minutes early and then waited above the city until the scheduled landing time.

The flight crew, he said, was composed of three qualified captains instead of the usual captain, first officer and second officer.

On the way back to England, the captain acting as first officer, took over the plane, and Moir had a short audience with the queen.

Air Canada had specific and detailed plans worked out for landing the royal party in case of fog in Vancouver, he said. If it had been impossible to land there, Abbotsford would have been the first alternative, followed by Victoria.

The London-Vancouver flight was the first time Moir had piloted a plane for the queen. But it was not his first experience with royalty. In 1969, he captained a plane which flew Prince Philip to B.C. from England.

He started his career flying Lockheeds, then DC-3s, North Stars, Viscounts, Vanguards and finally DC-8s.

He admits he still has a soft spot for Viscounts (the planes Air Canada uses on its Victoria-Vancouver runs).

"It's a great little short-distance plan," he said. "I think most of the pilots would agree with me. It's a lovely plane to fly."

As flight operations director for western Canada, Moir is in charge of 55 flight crews based in Vancouver — about 170 pilots.

His favorite run, he said, is to London and Prestwick, Scotland, because Scotland is his home country.

Moir said he believed the upward swing in the air transport industry will continue "at least for the foreseeable future," although there may be small hesitations.

Such a hesitation is occurring now, he said, just because of the general state of the economy.

He thinks giant planes like the Boeing 747 and even larger will continue to be the trend in new aircraft, adding that he believes them to be a "terrific" thing.

Although they are "an electronic maze of wires, gadgets and computers," they are actually safer than smaller planes, he said, because they have so many safety features and so many ways of guarding against failure and error.

The next big step forward in the industry, he said, will be development and acceptance of the supersonic aircraft. Within "a matter of months or years," scientists will have solved some of the problems these planes are currently creating, he said, and they will come into more general use.

'Do-It-Yourself' Crusaders Fined

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (UPI) — Abortion crusaders Patricia Maginnis and Rowena Gurner have been fined and placed on probation for distributing "do it yourself" information kits.

San Mateo County superior court judge W. Howard Hartley fined the women $500 each and placed them on one year probation. He upheld immediate imposition of the penalties to give defense attorneys time to appeal.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

Sincere kindness and sympathy bring consolation in a time of sorrow. The many helpful acts and understanding words of relatives and friends after the sudden loss of my dear husband Sig will long be remembered. To the Saanich Police Dept., Emergency ward, Royal Jubilee Hospital, Army, Navy and Airforce Veterans and to those who gave to charitable organizations I can only say "Thank You." — Mrs. Sig Sekkemo.

9 IN MEMORIAM

GILLAN — In loving memory of Douglas Gillan, November 11, 1964.
We miss you Douglas, your presence
Looking back with tenderness
Along the path you've trod
Beautiful memories you left.
We bless the fifteen years we had with you
And leave the rest to God.

You left sweet memories to blossom
Bearing fruit for the years to come
In the lives of those who love you
The rolling stream of life rolls on Precious are the days that are gone.

There is a world above
Where parting is unknown
A whole eternity of love
Formed by God alone
And faith beholds the dying here
Translated to that happier sphere.
—Sadly missed by Mother and Father, brother Paul.

McILWAINE — In loving memory of Mr. William McIlwaine, who passed away Nov. 11th, 1966.
Five years ago today,
He peacefully passed away
It was God's will to take you.
He knew you needed rest
His garden must be beautiful,
He only takes the best.
—Lovingly, Pearl, Norma, Marjorie and dear wife, Elsie.

Bruce Lowther

The popularity of the public TV network in the U.S. seems to be booming.

The Louis Harris Poll people say 39 million Americans watched PBS at least once a week as of last month, compared to 33 million in October of 1970. Average viewing hours rose to 1.9 a week from 1.5.

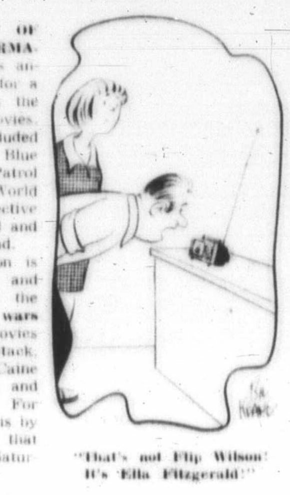

Black households watched PBS much more — 52 per cent this year, 35 per cent a year before. The Harris people credited that to Sesame Street and a 17-per-cent boost in minority programs on PBS this season.

An even more impressive statistic—28 per cent of all Americans were able to name their local PBS station last month compared to 19 per cent the year before. In case you're wondering, it's KCTS in Seattle.

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Wednesday's answer — The topic for a couple of days is the wars in certain movies. The first batch included Paths of Glory, Blue Max and Dawn Patrol from the First World War, plus Objective Burma and To Hell and Back from the second.

Today's question is more of the same and also the last of the same. Name the wars involved in the movies Battle Cry, Attack, Fighting 69th, The Caine Mutiny, Sgt. York and The Young Lions. For my money Attack is by far the best of that bunch. Answers Saturday.

"That's not Flip Wilson! It's Ella Fitzgerald!"

Winning Contract

By HOWARD and BEE SCHENKEN

One of our favorite up and coming bridge experts is Joel D. Gaines, whose achievements include the invention with the assistance of Waldemar von Zedtwitz, of Bridgette. This fascinating diversion is acclaimed by many experts, including Oswald Jacoby, Edgar Kaplan and Alfred Sheinwold as the best of all two-handed bridge games.

Joel is one of the most skilful bridge players at the Explorers Club of New York, where he played this hand.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Dbl.
4 ♠	All pass

Opening lead: King of ◇.

With an unavoidable club loser and a diamond loser, Joel had to avoid losing two heart tricks. This appeared to depend on finding West with the queen, as East, on the bidding, was marked with the ace.

However, Joel saw that he might be able to discard a heart on a diamond and succeed even if East held the A-Q of hearts. West, of course, would have to be kept out of the lead meanwhile.

To duck West's opening lead of the king of diamonds, or to win and return the jack, would surely invite a heart shift and Joel tried a different plan. He won, drew a round of trumps and exited with the two of diamonds!

West, caught on the hop, played the seven and East, who had parted with the six of diamonds on opening lead, was forced to win. He shifted to clubs but Joel ruffed the second one, led the jack of diamonds and ruffed West's queen.

Declarer was now able to discard a heart from dummy on the ten of diamonds, and thus the contract came home safe and sound despite the unfavorable heart situation.

SEA FRONT COUNTRY PROPERTY
… miles from Victoria … 16½ acres situated … overlooking the sunny sheltered Saanich Inlet. This property is being operated in a bush form, but is actually a registered subdivision of 13 lots averaging ¼ acre a piece. There is a comfortable older two-storey farm home with 1700 sq. ft. on the main floor and two rented cottages. The buildings are ringed with healthy fruit trees and evergreens. It is difficult to find view property in North Saanich on a par with these Ardmore lots but a comparison of prices will show this parcel to have sound value at an asking price of $125,000. A syndicate purchase is suggested either for holding or for immediate prestige development.

HOW TO WRITE

A GOOD

CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1. IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc. for rent or property for sale, start your ad with the location.

2. BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete definite information. Always include the price … allow the reader to speculate.

3. … Make it easy for the prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4. PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public every day.

5. PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6. GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer: the details and information you give are the most important.

7. WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8. TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient ad-visor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember: Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open daily, Monday through Saturday 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. for your call.

But Spare a Moment for Harvey

Classes 'As Usual' Despite Second Fire

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — Lake most community churches, Cobble Hill United will feature a memorial program today — but many of the 80 young boys attending probably won't be thinking of Canada's war dead.

Instead, these boys, students at Cliffside preparatory school, will likely be remembering their friend Harvey, who died Wednesday of smoke inhalation when Cliffside had its second major fire in four days.

Harvey, a rabbit, died when five classrooms, a science lab, cloakroom and chapel were destroyed by fire early Wednesday. Earlier this week the school's dining room and kitchen, valued at $100,000 had been razed by fire.

Headmaster Turner Huggard said Wednesday that cause of the latest fire is undetermined, but stressed that there was no evidence to support arson. He said school activities were continuing as usual with students using playrooms, the library, gymnasium and other spare rooms as classrooms.

"The offers of help from other independent schools have been quite a remarkable gesture of solidarity" said Huggard. He mentioned Shawnigan Lake, Brentwood College, and Strathcona Lodge schools as having offered assistance.

Huggard estimated damage caused by the latest fire at $75,000.

Shawnigan Lake fire chief Eric Gibson would not comment on the cause of the blaze. He said investigators from Victoria and the fire marshall from Vancouver were still checking for fire causes.

Glenlyon Clinches One Soccer Title

Glenlyon clinched one title and moved within a win of another Wednesday in Junior Independent Schools Soccer League matches at Windsor Park against St. Michael's University School.

Bill Taaffe's goal gave Glenlyon a 1-1 draw with St. Michael's in the under-12 division match, after Ian Pickles gave St. Michael's the lead. Glenlyon finished the season with three wins and a draw. St. Michael's were second with a 2-1-1 record and Cliffside of Shawnigan Lake came third with no victories in four matches.

In the under-14 division, centre-forward Richard Hunt scored four goals to lead Glenlyon to a 5-0 trouncing over St. Michael's. Peter Butterfield was the other scorer and Robert Thow made several good saves to gain the shutout.

Glenlyon has a 2-0-1 record, St. Michael's is 1-1-1 and Cliffside is 0-2, with matches left against both Victoria teams.

In Management area seven's Similkameen and Ashnola areas the antlerless season for mule deer and whitetails will close Nov. 14 instead of Nov. 28.
close Nov. 11, insteadof Nov. 28.

In the Big Bend Highway area of management area nine the elk season will close Nov. 14, instead of Nov. 28.

Bastion Maps 'Exciting' Path

By ERITH SMITH
Colonist Staff

Victoria, a city of abundant talent and real theatre appreciation, this year is joining a Canada-wide movement that has developed hugely in the last 10 years — the establishment of a theatre of its own that is truly professional. Edwin Stephenson is one of the people working around the clock to make this possible.

A grant from Canada Council enabled Bastion Theatre to bring in Colin Gorrie as artistic director of its Studio Theatre, and Ed Stephenson to direct this year's four professional productions, under the supervision of founding director Peter Mannering.

This Season

Here's what Stephenson is offering this season: the musical comedy Once Upon a Mattress, starring Dorothy Hosie; the comedy Plaza Suite; Five Finger Exercise, Peter Shaffer's exciting drama; Say Who You Are, an English farce.

And this season is only the beginning. Stephenson's spare moments are devoted to planning next year's program.

"What's happening all over Canada is really exciting," says Stephenson. "You know, 10 years ago it was very hard to make your living in the theatre in Canada. Today there are regional theatres like Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary, Halifax, Fredericton and Charlottetown in the summer only. None of these existed 10 years ago.

Better Quality

"If you didn't work in Toronto on television, or at the Crest Theatre (that was the only one), you didn't work. Now Toronto alone has eight theatres. Sogie are studio theatres where you're paid little or nothing, but it's all training."

It's Stephenson's big hope that audiences are ready to come out of the living room in search of live entertainment.

"That's the great advantage of going Equity. Of course, there can be bad professional actors, and there are wonderful amateur actors. That goes without saying. But the opportunity is there for better-quality shows.

"We're bringing in 15 professional actors this year, but the Canada Council grant doesn't cover that. The shows must pay their own way."

That's why Stephenson and Bastion are striving hard to double the yearly subscription list of ticket-holders. With this in mind they're looking outside Victoria.

Winnipeg-Born

They're looking north up Vancouver Island, hoping to expand Victoria's regional theatre into one that will involve all communities on the Island.

Stephenson was born in Winnipeg — his father Icelandic, his mother Scottish, and his grandmother a Manitoba pioneer. He started school there, then attended a boarding school outside Toronto for four years before going to University of Western Ontario in London, because it had a great non-credit drama group.

From Western Ontario Stephenson went to London, England, to the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art, "and I went to school with the great."

"In my class were Peter O'Toole, Alan Bates, Albert Finney, Brian Bedford and John Stride. For a time I shared a flat with Bedford, Finney, Bates and John Vernon."

With Stratford

After graduation came a year in repertory theatre in Carlyle, Cumberland, before Stephenson returned to Canada to work with Toronto's Crest Theatre.

Since then he has worked with the Stratford Festival (for four years); Manitoba Theatre Centre; The Playhouse in Fredericton, N.B.; Cafe Andre, Montreal; Central Library Theatre, Toronto; Theatre 21 at Port Carling, Ont.; The Hour Company tour of Ontario, playing to more than 100,000 students; Chichester Festival, back in England; St. Lawrence Centre, Toronto; Canadian Players' tour of Canada; Bastion; Museum Theatre for Children, Toronto, and the National Arts Centre, Ottawa.

In addition he has performed for CBC radio and television in both Toronto and Montreal.

Stephenson has also directed some 30 plays, and produced his own professional summer theatre outside Toronto for three years — 24 plays in as many weeks.

He lists his hobbies as bridge, tennis and as his pet dislike double doors on office buildings, one of which is always locked.

B.C. Taking Steps To Protect B.C.

Provincial Agriculture Minister Cyril Shelford said Tuesday the British Columbia government is taking steps to protect B.C. producers from subsidized imports.

He said in an interview he has proposed a system of import permits and quotas, and that his plans will be discussed later this month during meetings with federal agriculture officials.

As one example, Shelford suggested that tighter restrictions could be placed on the import of apples during the Okanagan Valley apple season.

Okanagan growers have protested against the abundance of U.S.-grown fruit in B.C. retail stores, and earlier this year set up an information picket line in Vancouver as a protest against the importing of apples from Australia.

Appeal Needs Business Oomph

The United Appeal will hold another canvassing blitz next Monday and Tuesday nights, said campaign chairman Eric Charman.

"We need to get as many volunteers as we can," he said. "We have over 200 kits unused and we can pretty well pick out a kit to suit anybody."

Most of the canvassing to be done next week will be in the Oak Bay and Saanich areas, he said.

The Appeal fund now stands at $458,000. Charman said returns have been slow in coming in, and contributions are down, he said.

"The contractors' business division is a disaster so far," he said. "We've had pitiful returns from sub-trades."

Returns were also generally weak from the tourist industry, he added.

One problem facing the Appeal is that so many businesses collect for other charities in their offices. "We've got too many firms conducting their own United Appeals," Charman said.

"The most amazing thing is where canvass kits are returned from firms without a nickel in them." For these reasons, he explained, the Appeal is not doing as well as it should.

Meter Mechanic Passed Skills to Son

Piper Will Bolster Scottish Centenarian

Alexander (Sandy) Smith will be celebrating his own Centennial next week — he will be 100 years old on Tuesday.

To mark this milestone there will be an at home at the home of his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Smith, 4241 Gordon Head Road, from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Tuesday there will be a family dinner at Holyrood House when a piper will be in attendance.

The piper will be there in recognition of Sandy Smith's Scottish background. He was born in Carluke, Scotland, in 1871 and was already 27 years when he came to Canada in 1898.

When he first came, his idea was to farm in the Winnipeg area under a land scheme development by the Canadian Pacific Railway and the federal government. Immigrants to Canada were given tracts of farmland under this scheme.

However the young man shelved the farming idea when he found that his tract was 40 miles from the railroad. But he did work for one season on a farm near Winnipeg before coming west to Victoria just before the turn of the century. His wages on the farm had been $10 a month.

Arriving in Victoria he went to work for the Victoria Gas Company, owned at that time by C. W. R. Thompson. But there wasn't enough work to keep a fulltime meter mechanic employed in those says so Sandy worked part-time at the dockyard.

Smith took his apprentice training as a meter repairman in Edinburgh.

His employment at the dockyard was as a tinsmith, and one of the jobs he remembers was putting up corrugated iron sheds. These sheds, he recalls, were used to store Welsh coal which was burned in the navy ships at that time.

He also worked as a laborer when the brick buildings at Signal Hill were being built by the British government. He was paid in sterling for this job by the Royal Navy.

In 1903 Smith went to Tacoma where he took a job with the Tacoma Gas Company as a meter mechanic. He intended to settle there so sent for his bride-to-be, Annie Young, in Scotland. But Annie was adamant about not being married on "foreign soil." So special arrangements were made for their wedding which took place in Vancouver.

The young couple went back to Tacoma where they lived for five years and where two of their four sons were born.

Moving back to Victoria in 1910, Smith again went to work for the Victoria Gas Company. In 1930 he took his third son, Duncan, to be his apprentice as a meter mechanic. Duncan has worked for the B.C. Electric and B.C. Hydro ever since, barring his wartime service in the RCAF.

Sandy Smith retired in 1943 and at that time his wages were 78½ cents an hour.

The B.C. Electric which succeeded the Victoria Gas Company called on Smith in 1960 to light an anniversary torch on an outside wall of the Victoria building to commemorate the 100th year of the founding of the gas company. The long taper he used to light the torch was one of the originals which lamplighters of the 1860's used to "turn on" the gaslights of that era.

Since his retirement, and until recently, Smith enjoyed gardening at his home. He has also been an active member of First United Church for 50 years.

Lost Confidence in Your Breath?

Bad breath often becomes a real problem for many people with deteriorating dentition . . . gum trouble, caps, bridgework and especially dentures. Only your dentist can rectify these conditions. But Steri/sol Oral Antiseptic does much to control accompanying bad breath. Steri/sol is specially designed for this purpose. Steri/sol's formulation contains an exclusive, active ingredient called Hexetidine that deprives bacteria of thiamine. Without thiamine, the mouth-germs that cause bad breath cannot live. In fact, Steri/sol with Hexetidine is so effective, it kills 95% of these mouth-germs within 15 minutes. Then it clings to the mouth and gum tissue to control bad breath for up to 10 hours. No wonder many dentists use Steri/sol.

Try Steri/sol with Hexetidine. It costs more than you usually pay for a mouthwash, but then Steri/sol is not your usual mouthwash. Sold only at pharmacies.

Cancer Warning Given On Synthetic Hormone

OTTAWA (CP) — A warning against prescription for pregnant women of a common synthetic hormone is being distributed to doctors by the health department's food and drug directorate.

The hormone DES — for diethyistilbesterol — has been linked to vaginal cancer in daughters of women who had taken the drug during pregnancy.

The hormone and related drugs such as dienestrol, hexestrol, benegestrol, promethestrol and chlortrianisene, was in widespread use about 20 years ago to prevent threatened miscarriages. It was also prescribed for women with pregnancy difficulties due to diabetes and kidney disease.

The Canadian action followed confirmed results of American studies demonstrating a significant statistical relation between use of the hormone and occurrence in female offspring of adenocarcinoma of the vagina, a rare type of cancer.

The synthetic hormone, discovered in 1938, declined in use with development of more efficient treatments and increasing use of progesterone for pregnancy difficulties.

A food and drug directorate spokesman said Wednesday that use of the drug is not as widespread in Canada as in the U.S. and a search of medical records failed to turn up any case here of vaginal cancer related to its use.

He said it is improbably that it is in current use as a treatment for pregnant women. It is still used to relieve menopausal symptoms, including senile vaginitis, and to treat prostrate cancer in men.

The warning is to be distributed in a regular health department bulletin to doctors, and manufacturers of the drug now are required to issue a warning against its use for pregnant women.

'Burn Time' Regulated For Textiles

OTTAWA (CP) — Regulations that will restrict from the market textile products that burn easily were announced Wednesday by the consumer affairs department.

In a news release, the department said it had established a standard "burn time" test. A fixed length of ordinary textile that burns faster than 3.5 seconds will be banned.

Products with raised fibres, like flannelette, must not burn faster than four seconds. Material for children's nightwear and bedding must take at least seven seconds to burn.

The regulations are designed to keep the most flammable products off the market, the department said. They are introduced under the Hazardous Products Act and will be subject to continuing review.

'Important Thing Was To Get Baby'

Mixed Race Adoption

MONTREAL (CP) — Already the parents of three boys, Hilda and Mervyn Ungar wanted a girl whatever her race or color to complete their family.

We had three boys and we wanted a little girl, Mrs. Ungar said. "We went to the Baron de Hirsch Institute where we were told there was a shortage of Jewish babies but that we might be able to have one of mixed race.

We had already had family conferences about getting a baby. We all agreed that the important thing was to get a baby. We had not real preferences about race or color just about sex. We wanted a girl.

Two months later the Ungars were notified that there was a baby girl available for adoption in the Northwest Territories. She was the child of a teen-aged Indian girl. They adopted three-month-old Rachelle Morena.

We saw her picture and right away knew she was for us, Mrs. Ungar said. "We've had her now for several weeks. She's a great baby, smiles easily and laughs a lot so much that we're inclined to spoil her.

The boys love helping to take care of her and my routine hasn't changed radically. We're home folks and staying in again with a little baby isn't too hard.

While we might have had another child of our own, we had no way of being sure it would be a girl. This way our family is complete. Our little girl is as much part of it as anyone in it."

For Blu'ma and Melvyn Appel, their whole world turned upside down when the institute told them their baby was to arrive in Toronto from Manitoba.

"We rushed about getting ready and left early the next morning," Mrs. Appel said. "It was the strangest sensation to be standing at an airport waiting for a baby we never had seen and being brought by a man we had not seen.

"We didn't have any idea what she would like or what schedule she would be on but we decided to play it by ear. Everything worked out fine. We call her Stacey Ilene. She's three months old, of an Indian mother and white father. She's as good as gold."

Like the Ungars, it took about two months before they were notified a baby girl had been found. They have a son of their own, six-year-old Andrew.

The idea of a transracial adoption didn't bother us, Mrs. Appel said. "My brother and his wife adopted a little Vietnamese baby, so we were familiar with the idea. I don't feel there was anything particularly noble about what we did. We got an adorable one and that's the important thing."

Nurses Told To Fight for Care Say

By NANCY BROWN
Colonist Reporter

If nurses want a say in health care planning, then they are going to have to fight for it, Greater Victoria district nurses were told Tuesday night.

Ted Luscombe, administrative consultant with British Columbia Hospitals Insurance Commission, was taken aback to learn that the nurses do have a seat on the provincial hospital planning advisory committee, when he addressed members of the Registered Nurses' Association of British Columbia.

However, he was informed by one of the nurses present, there had never been any notification of times or dates of meetings since the appointment was made about a year ago.

Luscombe said the present terms of reference for the committee do not provide for an association representative, but he was told an arrangement had been made between the association and Health Minister Ralph Loffmark.

Luscombe agreed with the nurses that their opinions are needed if health care is to reach the highest possible levels.

He said that both the nursing profession and patients suffer if decisions about health care are without advice from all those who will have to carry out the service.

BCHIS does employ nursing consultants to give advice on the nursing viewpoint, but, he warned, since they are government employees, there is a restriction on them and on their ways of thinking.

He told the nurses that if they do make representations to government they must be sure that presentations are governed by fact rather than by emotion.

The credibility gap, once established, is most difficult to expel," said Luscombe.

He also fielded many questions from the nurses on quality of health care in the province, explaining that in many cases there simply is not enough money available to be spent building up all necessary types of health care.

The nurses were insistent that there should be changes made in the criteria for keeping patients in extended care units.

At present the criteria is that patients to be eligible must need 24-hour nursing supervision which cannot be maintained in the home.

The nurses pointed out that this means that quite often an elderly patient is forced out of extended care hospital simply because therapy has given him the ability to walk from his chair across the room.

"The patient goes home or into a boarding home for a while, slips back and then has to be admitted to an expensive acute care bed for 10 months while he waits for an extended-care bed," claimed one nurse. "He shouldn't have been discharged in the first place."

Luscombe said the nurses brief on the subject had been read and assessed but the recommendations were far too expensive.

He predicted however, that in the future these people will be taken care of in the new "intermediate" or "personal care" hospitals being built in the province.

Initially the hospitals will cater only to welfare patients who are at present in private hospitals with government subsidies, but he said, eventually all patients in need will be able to find such beds.

Erma Bombeck

Generally speaking, most men cannot abide women who are funny. Or, as they say in more sophisticated circles, "No one loves a smart mouth!"

Rivers, Diller, Ball and Burnett have made some inroads, but the fact remains whenever anyone mentions how funny Fields was, the association is with W. C. and not Totie. The truth is comediennes have to try harder. Lucille Ball topped all other situation comedies in the 60s in a single show, but she had to give birth to do it.

That is why I am delighted to report that the Louise Fazenda Film Festival will be held this weekend in Rochester, N.Y. Maybe you are all sick of hearing about Louise Fazenda, but I feel that recognition is finally being given to a pioneer comedienne who matched her wits in 1915 in films with that all-time funnyman, Gary Cooper.

What is more impressive is the list of people who are not able to attend the Louise Fazenda Film Festival.

From George Burns: Sorry, but I just can't make the Louise Fazenda Film Festival. I just hope it's as successful as the Sonny Tufts Seminar held on Catalina Island in 1966. I think it's still going on.

From Dan Rowan: "Dick and I are ecstatic, overjoyed and almost delighted to have our names on the illustrious list of people who are not going to attend. There can be no question of the great urgency and national need for the Fazenda Festival, so I won't raise such a question.

We must certainly refuse to send you anything we have relating to Louise, because any day in which we couldn't fondle Fazenda memorabilia would be a desolate day indeed. In answer to your question that we mention the Festival on our television show, I think it is only fair to tell you that Louise Fazenda is not a name we bandy about on a program of such low quality and poor taste. I hope this letter does not initiate any further correspondence."

From Dick Gavett: "Because of the demands of my television show, I'm afraid it's impossible for me to attend the annual Louise Fazenda Film Festival in November. I wish you every success on the man (who is Louise Fazenda).

Douglas Fairbanks Jr. cannot attend. Neither can Bill Graham or Henry Kissinger or Edgar Bergman or Willie Mays. But the important thing is that finally a woman comedienne will set a new non-attendance record.

Eat your hearts out Flip Henny Milton, Rodney Jons again.

Toronto Woman Describes Treatment:

New York Abortion Was Nightmare

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto woman who went to New York for an abortion describes the experience as a nightmare.

The woman, identified only as Dorothy, told her story in an interview. She is the mother of two boys. After she separated from her husband in August, she discovered she was pregnant.

"I had a nervous breakdown once and I felt I was going the same way again. I just couldn't take the responsibility of another baby now, and I couldn't afford to take time off work," she said.

In September, a friend gave her some birth control pills which made her sick but did not induce an abortion.

"Then I was really frightened that I'd done something to the baby and I just had to have an abortion."

She called city hospitals but when she told them she was 16 weeks pregnant, they said they were "booked solid."

Dr. Edwin Abbott, assistant medical officer of health in Scarborough, examined her and gave her the name of the Wickersham Women's Medical Centre on East 58th Street in New York.

The hospital said it was booked but she begged admitting officials to take her and they finally agreed.

In New York, she waited for 2½ hours in a small room crowded with about 30 women. There were not enough chairs so the patients took turns standing. Many were crying.

She said when she was ushered into the examining room she saw that the sheet on the examining table was wrinkled and apparently unchanged between patients. She spread her dress over it, to the annoyance of the nurse.

She was taken to another room where she paid the all-inclusive fee of $400.

In Toronto an abortion costs $75 to $100 but a three-day stay in hospital would cost close to $100 a day. Medical and hospital insurance would cover most of this.

She returned to her four-bed room where a doctor gave her a local anesthetic and injected a saline solution. By this time it was 7 p.m. and she got her first meal of the day.

She began labor at 9 p.m. and was told not to get out of bed again to use the bathroom. When she used a bedpan, a nurse angrily asked why she could not go to the bathroom like everyone else. Later she did so and another nurse, equally angry, told her to get into bed and stay there.

The nurses spoke to her and other patients in a contemptuous and humiliating manner, she said.

At 4 a.m. amniotic fluid was released but the nurse refused to change the bed until she delivered.

She said no one came in to help or advise during the delivery.

"I tried to remember what the doctor told me when I was having the children and when the pains came, I pulled up my legs and pushed and that helped."

She saw a 12-year-old girl and gave the child the same advice.

She delivered the fetus at 9:30 a.m. and rang for the nurse.

The nurse laughed, then raised the bedclothes and said, "Oh, you really have, but the placenta has not come."

After discharge of the placenta she was left sitting on the bedpan for a further hour before it was taken away.

The next day she suffered pain but was due to be discharged in the morning. Breakfast was not brought to the room but she could not go to the hospital dining room because she had to wait for the doctor, who arrived about 9 a.m.

She was given painkillers and antibiotics and instructed to see a doctor when she got home.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I'm back from a trip and am just catching up with the letters from women who are mad at you because of your advice to the serviceman's wife. I thought your answer was great. You pointed out what can happen when the guilty party is told repeatedly what a skunk he is.

As the guilty party (and the skunk) may I tell you how it feels when a wonderful wife IS willing to forgive and forget? Every married man who cheats has periodic nightmares of what it would be like to be caught by his wife. I mean REALLY caught. That nightmare turned into reality for me 10 years ago. I remember it as if it were yesterday. My wife simply said, "We'll talk later" — and we did. She told me if I wanted another chance I could have it — that she would forgive me and not mention it again. She kept her word. I felt like the lowest creature in the world. My love and admiration for her grew tenfold. That incident strengthened our relationship and heightened my respect for her. The psychological scar is still there — but it's a scar, and not an open wound because she let it heal and didn't pick at it. So stick by your guns, Ann. Maybe not every woman is capable of forgiving and forgetting, but I'll bet most wives could do better if they gave it a try. — Mr. Lucky.

Dear Mr. Lucky: In a book by the late Dr. Eric Berne, Games People Play, he described a game called Now I've got you — you SOB! It's the approach most wives use against a caught husband. It's the wrong one. Your wife used the right one and my hat is off to her. Instead of tossing the lemon, she made lemonade.

Dear Ann Landers: You printed a letter about a young woman who bathed twice a day, used anti-perspirants, deodorants and colognes but still she was sure she had an unpleasant odor. She had even gone to several doctors and they could not detect the offensive odor which she said was ruining her life. You told her she needed a head doctor, not a skin doctor.

The person I am writing about has the reverse problem. She really does have an offensive odor and is not aware of it. Those of us who work with her are appalled by her insensitivity. Please tell us what to do. — Tongue-Tied.

Dear T.T.: Decide among yourselves which woman in the office communicates most easily with Miss Clean On Top. That person should then tell her how she herself solved the very same problem after someone was good enough to give her the word. Easy to do? No. But suffering in silence is not easy either. Someone should speak up.

□

Dear Ann Landers: I have heard about married men who tell girls they are single, but what about a single man who tells a girl he is married?

I started to date Don four months ago. I met him at a very respectable singles bar. He told me he was married, but not living with his wife. Now I find out from a friend who works with his brother that Don is not married, and never has been. Why would he lie about a thing like this? — Stunner.

Dear Stunned: Don's "message" is that he is not marriage material. Take the hint and give him back to his wife.

Ex-Reporter New Senator

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau announced Wednesday the appointment to the Senate of Renaude Lapointe, former Montreal reporter and editorial writer.

Miss Lapointe, who will be 60 Jan. 3, in 1965 became the first woman on the editorial board of the Montreal daily La Presse. She will sit as a Liberal.

Last year she became an information officer for the Indian affairs and northern development department, after 31 years in the newspaper business.

She is currently a member of the Canadian delegation to the United Nations and is on the commission for social, humanitarian and cultural affairs.

Lapointe

Her appointment reduces the number of vacancies in the 102-seat Senate to 15. Trudeau had appointed four Liberals to the Upper House a week ago.

Senate standings: Liberal 64, PC 19, Independent 2, Independent Liberal 1, Social Credit 1, vacant 15.

Miss Lapointe was born Jan. 3, 1912, in Disraeli, Que., and educated at the Ecole des Ursulines in Stanstead.

She was a reporter for Le Soleil, a Quebec City daily, from 1939 to 1959, leaving to join La Presse.

From 1953 to 1955, she was also Quebec correspondent for the New York Times and the CBC International Service.

As a Senator, she will be paid $18,000 a year plus $4,000 a year expenses. The Senate retirement age is 75.

Some Love, Some Agree

TOKYO (Reuter) — After making a survey of 968 couples due to marry, Tokyo's Marriage Research Centre found that 82 per cent were getting married for love and the rest as a result of parental arrangements.

Post-Freeze Controls

Exemptions Roster A Surprise

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Cost of Living Council approved Wednesday a surprise list of exemptions from President Nixon's post-freeze economic controls, including all used products, commercial and industrial rents, raw sugar and all existing and many new homes.

The council announced the exempt items at a news conference called to explain how the economy will be split up for the policing of wage and price controls that will come after the freeze, imposed Aug. 15, ends Saturday.

In addition, council director Donald Rumsfeld told reporters he would not rule out possible exemptions to pay standards adopted earlier this week. Rumsfeld would not elaborate.

He emphasized that except for those items specifically exempted, all retail and wholesale prices will continue to be controlled after the freeze.

Firms with less than $50 million in annual sales will continue to be subject only to citizen complaints and spot checks by Internal Revenue Service agents, as during the freeze.

Following Nixon's pledge to refrain from close government supervision of the entire economy, the council classified the economy in three parts for policing violations.

About half of the total sales in the U.S. and pay increases affecting about 83 per cent of all workers will be subject only to spot government checks for violation of wage-price controls.

The council said 1,300 companies, with sales of $100 million and over, will be required to report price increases to the government before they can go into effect. This represents 45 per cent of all sales.

Pay increases affecting 5,000 workers or more must be reported to the government before they can be paid. About 500 economic units, presumably bargaining units, are affected, representing 10 per cent of all U.S. workers.

In another category, about 1,100 companies with annual sales of $50 million to $100 million must report price increases on a quarterly basis to the government. About five per cent of all sales are in this classification. Also, pay increases that will affect between 1,000 and 5,000 workers must be reported to the government on a quarterly basis. This represents about seven per cent of all workers, the council said.

Among the items that will be exempt during the post-freeze period will be used cars, possibly the biggest exemption in the group. Although rents will be controlled after the freeze ends, commercial, industrial and farm property rents will not be covered.

In addition, the council said rents may be increased if a landlord puts half of the value of his rental property into improvements. This provision applies to dwellings rented for the first time after Aug. 15.

All unimproved real estate and existing homes will be exempt from controls, as well as new homes on which the price was determined after completion of construction.

The council also exempted dues to non-profit organizations, international shipping rates, royalties and copyrights, various miscellaneous items such as antiques and art objects, and custom services and products made to individual order, such as wigs and special clothing.

Raindrops No More

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Angie Dickinson was a sex symbol in her own right and working steadily in movies and TV when she married a composer who has since surpassed her (in feminine eyes, at least) in the sex appeal department.

Angie is pleased but perplexed by her new role as supporting player to her husband.

When they were married six years ago everyone knew Angie but the public only whistled her husband's songs. They didn't know Burt Bacharach to see.

Then along came the the 1969 Academy Awards and the public got a glimpse of the handsome young composer and females in the audience suffered a sudden and massive crush on Burt.

"I recognized Burt's attractiveness when I first met him," Angie said the other day. "But it was funny how the press acted.

Here's how it went:

"'Angie Dickinson marries composer.'

"'Angie Dickinson and Burt Bacharach, her husband, visit New York.'

"'Burt Bacharach and wife appear at Hollywood Park.'

"I guess the next thing will be, 'Who is Angie Dickinson?' But I'd rather have it that way than vice-versa. When we were first married he was called Mr. Dickinson and it ruffled his feathers."

Since their marriage Bacharach has gone on to write some of the top songs recorded by the biggest vocalists in the country. He won his Oscar for Raindrops Keep Falling on My Head.

Women has been raining on his head ever since.

"Never saw anything like it," said Angie, only half amused. "I don't mind it so much when they crowd around him when I'm along. But then he goes on tour alone and I try not to think about it."

Angie needn't bother her pretty head anyhow. She is busy working herself. She recently appeared in a powerfully dramatic role with Anthony Quinn in the actor's new television series, The Man and the City.

On Dec. 11 she can be seen starring in Second Face, a Saturday Movie of the Weekend.

Dickinson
. . . perplexed

Burt and Angie made a single public entertainment appearance together on the defunct Hollywood Palace Show.

"He's so successful he doesn't need to appear with anyone else," Angie said happily. "I knew he was a tremendous talent and would become very famous. When I first told him that he thought I was crazy.

"I think it's terribly important that a man married to an actress is better known and economically more successful than she is. Otherwise it must be pure hell for both parties.

"The other night he asked for potato pancakes at Chasen's Restaurant. The waiter said they didn't have them, but he'd ask the chef. He came back and announced they would be made especially for Burt.

"That never happened to me," Angie said.

Last Governor Of Nigeria Dies

LONDON (AP) — John MacPherson, 73, former governor of Nigeria and former undersecretary at the colonial office, has died in London. During the Second World War, MacPherson headed a supply mission in Washington. He was named governor of Nigeria in 1948 and helped form the constitution that led to self-government in the African state.

Memories

Fifty-three years ago this morning, the war ended for me in a muddy cellar of a ruined French farmhouse where my comrades and I were taking turns peeking through a hole in the brickwork at an enemy far too close for comfort. I was 17 at the time, having lied like a trooper about my age to get into the army at the ripe old age of 15 and a bit.

I wasn't much of a gardener in those days. In fact, I wasn't much of anything — just a rather slovenly rear-rank private, the despair of our platoon sergeant, for I was a gangling youth and my uniform always looked like hand-me-downs.

I think the gardening bug had bitten me even at that early age, though. For one thing, I found I had an unerring nose for ferreting out an abandoned vegetable garden, and no matter how shelled and battered a village might be, some instinct would always guide me to the spot where I could unearth the odd onion or turnip. We were hungry all the time, sick to death of iron-ration bully beef, and I became the official "liberator" of vegetables for our squad.

I can remember one fellow, though, who had the bug in a much more virulent form than I. He was a gunner in a battery of horse artillery, and even the vicissitudes of war couldn't keep him from growing things. His "garden" was planted up in an old ammunition box, and his handful of radishes, half a dozen green onions and one lone lettuce plant accompanied him on an artillery limber whenever his battery moved.

□

Will any "old sweat" ever forget the winding country road from East Sandling camp in Kent to the musketry range at Hythe? I can remember the ancient ruins of Sandling Castle ablaze with self-sown seedlings of wallflowers growing as nature intended — in walls. Their roots fed upon the rich lime mortar in the crevices between the great stones, and the spicy scent of their blossoms would reach our columns as we marched to firing practice.

Another scented memory — not so pleasant — is one of those enormous piles of manure in the courtyard of every French farmhouse, and I still drool with avarice at the thought of such vast quantities of the precious stuff — mountains of it — with all its goodness leaching away in the winter rains.

I was told that a French peasant's social standing and prestige in his village was governed largely by the size of his manure pile, and this I can believe, for I never saw any of it spread in the fields. From the size of those enormous heaps, it must have been hoarded and added to, and passed on from father to son over several generations!

□

It was a bad war and a good one. There was perpetual hunger and bone-racking fatigue, filth indescribable and stark terror, boredom and misery. But to balance the account we had Violet Lorraine and George Robey, Chu Chin Chow and Maid of the Mountains, Elsie Janis and the Bing Boys, Bruce Bairnsfather and Old Bill, Kew Gardens in lilac time and the glory of an English spring, and comradeship with brothers-in-arms such as we never find in our humdrum civil life.

Art Buchwald

Way the World Goes

WASHINGTON — The best quote to come out of the Amchitka H-bomb test can be attributed to Major-General Edward B. Giller who has the title of "assistant general manager for military application" at the Atomic Energy Commission.

After the test General Giller told reporters, "I don't forsee another test, but I won't say we'll never come back. It depends on how the world goes."

Well, everyone knows how the world is going to go.

★ ★ ★

The Russian military chiefs are going to say to the Kremlin, "See here, Comrade Rulers, the Americans have just exploded a five-megaton bomb 6,000 feet below surface of earth. Is important we explode six-megaton bomb 7,000 feet below surface of earth or they will think they are ahead of us in nuclear warfare."

"Is safe exploding six-megaton bomb below the earth?" the Kremlin asks.

"Who knows? But national security, it is involved, and safe is not what we should worry about. Is Spartan missile we must worry about."

★ ★ ★

"Spartan missile, Comrade Generals?"

"Is missile used in ABM system to shoot down our missile. Americans say explosion was success. Is proof that we cannot get through their defence. Is giving United States such confidence they might attack us without warning. Soviets must explode six-megaton H-bomb to show Washington not ahead in missile race."

"Comrade Generals," the Kremlin asks, "suppose this explosion is causing earthquakes all over Siberia?"

★ ★ ★

"Impossible, Comrade Rulers. The Soviet Supreme Court has just voted four to three that 5-megaton H-bomb can't cause earthquakes."

"All right, Comrade Generals. Go with explosion. National security more important than lousy earthquakes."

Six months later, back at the White House:

"Mr. President the Soviets have just exploded a six-megaton H-bomb 7,000 feet below the surface of the earth."

★ ★ ★

"What does that mean, General?"

"We're not sure, sir. But it could mean that their Shashlik missile can penetrate our Spartan missile, which as you know is our first line of defence, whenever we get it built."

"I was afraid you'd say that, General. I would hate to be the first president to go down in history as allowing a Shashlik missile to get through our Spartan missile defence system."

"Precisely, sir. This test has given the Soviets added confidence and unless we prove to them that we have something to stop the Shashlik, we might have to blink in our next eyeball-to-eyeball confrontation."

"What do you suggest, General?"

"That we lay it on the Soviets once and for all. We must set off a 15-megaton H-bomb 20,000 feet below the surface of the earth."

"Are there any environmental hazards?"

"None comparable to the risk of our national security. We might lose part of Alaska in the explosion and there could be some cracks in the western half of Canada, but that's the way the world goes."

★ ★ ★

"I'm for the test, of course, General, but I have to think of the political repercussions. Suppose the environmentalists sue and take the case to the Supreme Court?"

"But Mr. President, have you forgotten? It's YOUR Supreme Court."

Man Bites Dog

Jack Lemmon doesn't care who knows it: He's tired of being Mr. Nice Guy, weary of having his good nature taken advantage of by certain members of the acting profession. From now on, he made it clear, "I'm having it written into my contract that I want to be treated as an equal, and I don't care who kind of dog they hire to get with me."

It's the canine variety he's referring to, a mixed terrior and an English sheepdog specifically. He can handle the temperaments, the non-professional behavior of most other varieties of thespians, but his experiences during The War Between Men and Women shooting has convinced him he's had it with kennel cut-ups. To hear Jack tell it, he has been treated like a dog during certain moments of the filming of that film.

"I never had much a fellow actor," said Jack, "but that English sheepdog, Teddybear, has to go down as one of my least favorite costars. He refused to do a scene and, instead of firing him, as they would have a human actor, they rewarded him with caviar!"

The caviar incident came about, Jack said, divulging backstage secrets, after old Teddybear refused to be lured to the cameras with choice bits of meat. "Director Mel Shavelson came up with the idea of offering Teddy some of the caviar being used in a scene Barbara Harris and I were filming. And it worked! But after the scene was over, and I started to dip into the caviar myself, I was told not to eat any of it because they needed the rest for the dog!"

As for Scruffy, the mixed terrier, Jack's complaints centre around the fact that the dog was a bit too professional about his role, and he has the scars to prove it. "When he had to go after my leg in a scene, he really went after it! I have a sneaking suspicion that Scruffy is a method actor."

Director Jerry Paris is jumping for joy over sneak preview reactions to Star Spangled Girl, the Sandy Duncan starrer planned for Paramount's Christmas attraction. They've previewed it in 30 different cities so far and the verdict has been a unanimous: Right on!

★ ★ ★

Elvis Presley assured me he's not leaving Hollywood for full-time Memphis residency. His Beverly Hills home was mistakengly listed for sale. So if you're looking for a million-dollar-plus house in that area, I'm afraid you'll have to look elsewhere.

★ ★ ★

The Cinema Centre folks hope their latest documentary offering, The African Elephant, will enjoy the same sort of box-office success their Blue Water, White Death earned earlier this year. Elephant, filmed entirely on East Africa located by photographer Simon Trevor and his wife, is primarily the brainchild of producer William Graf, who has, as he puts it, "a great love and respect for Africa."

★ ★ ★

Johnny Hallyday, the singer they've dubbed the Elvis Presley of France, has decided he's not going to go the Presley route in movies. "I'd rather play a supporting role in a good film than star in a mediocre picture." A line not calculated to make Elvis Presley a Johnny Hallyday fan.

Man Needs Triple-A

"A-A-A." A psychiatrist once suggested that if this familiar road-sign of the "triple-A" would also reflect the highways of our lives, there might be less need for his professional services.

He went on to explain as much as food, man requires the approval, acceptance, and appreciation, from his fellows.

If he possesses these in good measure, he can be relied upon to deal sensibly with his private complexities. He will probably also be personally competent to meet the harrowing challenges life thrusts upon him.

APPROVAL. This is an affirmative of life and it is a vital staple in any man's spiritual diet. We require it in large, daily doses. For we need to know regularly and consistently that our families and friends affirm us that they desire us to continue growing, doing, and being.

Without this, even the most talented persons cannot function at the peak of their possibilities.

ACCEPTANCE. Approval is much, but it is not enough. Approval is passive, but acceptance is active. we may be approved of by others against their real will, only because circumstances require it; they may have no alternative.

Acceptance is often little more than toleration. And toleration is a far cry from tolerance — and even tolerance may be loveless, condescending acquiescence.

But to be accepted by others, suggests that they have been moved from within, to move toward us, to receive us as they would themselves.

APPRECIATION. We need to express and to learn how to communicate our joyful appreciations of life and love in concrete, personal ways.

Too many are niggardly in dispersing love in the small but indispensable coins of daily doings. Easily, they mouth the grand, but ephemeral phrases.

Of the "three-A's," the last is the most, not the least. To appreciate is not only to be grateful, but more. It is to be fully sensible of others — it is the capacity to experience the same feelings as those of our friends and neighbors.

When we "appreciate" another's hurt, difficulty, or sorrow — we are capable of knowing him as we know ourselves.

And if we are thus appreciated by others, if we are known to them as they would know and love themselves, we can endure much of the hurt and pain that may come our way. For they will love us as themselves — as we love them, too.

Municipalities Dispute Census

The municipalities of Oak Bay and Esquimalt are concerned about 1971 census figures of Statistics Canada, released in Ottawa Monday.

Oak Bay Mayor Frances Elford said she would recommend her council to appeal Oak Bay figures, an increase of 241 over 1966. Esquimalt Mayor Art Young said he was studying his municipality's figures, which show an increase of four, but had not decided on an appeal.

Mrs. Elford said she felt the appeal — which must be made within 10 days and include an alternative population figure, and how it was arrived at — would be justified since new homes built in the area would seem to indicate a larger increase.

Young said he questioned the figures on two counts — inclusion of the Panhandle area after the 1966 census, meant a jump up of about 300 and the count of single men in military barracks, not counted by census officials, did not seem sufficiently high.

Brambling Seen At Refuge

VANCOUVER (CP) — A brambling, an orange-red breasted finch the size of a sparrow, has been sighted at the Reifel Waterfowl Refuge in the Fraser River Delta south of Vancouver.

Officials of the Vancouver Natural History Society said Wednesday that it was the first time the species, common in Northern Europe and Northern Asia, has been officially recorded in Canada.

The only previous sighting of a wild Brambling reported in North America was in 1914 when a male bird was captured in Alaska.

Early Move at UN

Peking's Man Leading Spy

NEW YORK (UPI) — A major United Newspaper said Wednesday the head of a six-man party preparing the way here for Communist China's delegation to the United Nations is a leading spy from Peking who was kicked out of two countires.

The Chicago Sun-Times said Kao Liang, said to be a former journalist, was expelled from India in 1960, Mauritius in 1964 and was a prime mover in the 1964 pro-Peking coup in Zanzibar.

The newspaper said it was assumed China would place spies in its delegation "but Peking, moving into the international diplomatic spotlight for the first time, had not been expected to get into the game so soon, particularly with a man of Kao's reputation."

Keesing's Contemporary Archives, an indexed weekly diary of important world events which is published in Bristol, England, said in its 1959-60 edition that on July 30, 1959, Kao's visa to India as New Delhi correspondent for the Communist Chinese official New China News Agency was "not renewed because of his 'persistently one-sided and malicious' reports which could only embitter China-India relations."

A note from Peking Aug. 1 protested Kao's expulsion as "harmful to China-India friendship," Keesing's said.

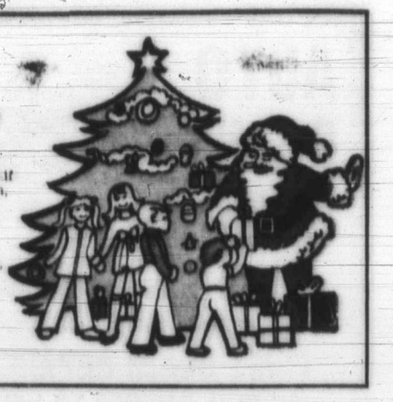

Kao's "principal assignment" before the UN visit was as chief African correspondent for the New China News Agency, the newspaper said.

"He reportedly lived lavishly, maintaining a large house and entertaining beyond the means of even the highest-paid European and American journalists. He was spotted at several independence celebrations, flashing a big roll of money, and once signed into a hotel in Burundi as the Chinese ambassador," the Sun-Times said.

The six advance men, who made a quick trip to the UN's skyscraper headquarters Tuesday, ate a $79 breakfast in the Roosevelt coffee shop Wednesday.

Kidnapping Bail Set At $20,000

KIMBERLEY, B.C. (CP) — Bail of $20,000 cash or $40,000 property was set Wednesday for Kitchener Bennett, 54, of Kimberley, charged with the kidnapping in 1969 of 15-year-old Philip Porter, also of Kimberley, who is still missing.

Judge David Lunn, in allowing bail in provincial court, noted the seriousness of the charge and said the protection of the public is of prime importance.

Defence counsel had argued for a reasonable bail figure, citing Bennett's good record at Agassiz minimum security prison where he served 26 months of a three-year sentence for extortion in connection with the Porter case.

The Crown argued against bail, saying bail had never been granted in British Columbia in a kidnapping case.

Bennett remained in custody Wednesday night.

The Porter boy was last seen June 26, 1969, when he left his home in Kimberley on an errand for his mother.

One RCMP officer said Wednesday: "We have our suspicions but that's all they are, suspicions."

Mr. and Mrs. Robin Porter received a telephone call June 26 from a man demanding $100,000. They later received a crudely-typed ransom note. Bennett was arrested later and admitted extortion, but said he knew nothing of the kidnapping.

He was arrested again Tuesday immediately on his release from the B.C. Penitentiary, and was flown to Kimberley, where a formal charge of kidnapping was laid against him.

Quebec Aim: Cablevision Jurisdiction

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec is "impatiently awaiting" meetings with federal authorities to parcel out fields of jurisdiction over cable television, which would be brought under provincial control under legislation before the Quebec national assembly.

A source in the Quebec communications department said Wednesday the bill, which extends the jurisdiction of the Quebec public service board, is aimed "in reality at cablevision," although "in theory it can apply to all forms of communications."

The bill in practice would require all communications facilities to obtain permits from the public service board. It would not exempt such federally-chartered institutions as Bell Canada or the CBC.

The federal-provincial conflict lies in the federal government's claim to exclusive jurisdiction over broadcast and "cablevision" communications.

The communications department source said Quebec wants meetings with the federal government to negotiate what aspects of communications policy would be regulated by federal authorities and what by provincial authorities.

Workers, Jobless Both Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment rose last month from its low point for the year so far, but there was an unusual October upswing in employment as well, Statistics Canada reported Wednesday.

The mid-October estimate of jobless was 447,000, up from 434,000 in September and 419,000 in October last year. The number of people employed rose to 8.25 million from 8.19 million in September and 7.99 million in October last year.

For the country as a whole, the unemployment rate — the number of jobless as a percentage of the total labor force — rose to 5.1 per cent from five per cent in both September this year and October last year.

The seasonally-adjusted rate, computed by the statisticians to show the underlying trend without the wide swings between high summer employment and slow winter activity, declined to 6.7 in October from 7.1 in September, its highest point since mid-1961.

An unusual feature of the latest report was an addition of 76,000 people to the labor force and an increase of 20,000 among unemployed women over 24. Unemployment for men over 24 and for younger workers of both sexes declined by 8,000.

All the figures are estimates based on a survey of employment and unemployment during the week ended Oct. 16. The monthly survey covers 30,000 households across the country, except on Indian reserves and the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

Statistics Canada said there was a noticeable gain in employment between September and October for persons aged 14 to 24, and for women 25 and over. There was little change in employment for men 25 and over.

There was an above-average increase in employment in manufacturing. Transportation, communications and other utilities which usually show a decline in employment as winter approaches, recorded little change last month.

B.C. Jobs, Jobless Both Rise

VANCOUVER (CP) — The labor force in British Columbia grew by 17,000 persons during October and the unemployment rate jumped only marginally, to 5.7 per cent from 5.5, Statistics Canada reported Wednesday.

"However, the rise in unemployment was below the average seasonal increase for this time of year and as a result the seasonally adjusted rate of unemployment declined from 7.1 per cent to 6.2 per cent in October," the federal agency said.

Almost three-quarters of those finding jobs during October where women, it said, and the increase was about equally divided between those over and under 25.

Poverty: Search for a Way Out

Cover of $2 Senate report
. . . and a 25-cent condensation for the poor

Guaranteed Income Need Stressed But Ottawa Balks at Heavy Cost

OTTAWA, (CP) — The government and the Senate poverty committee clashed head-on Wednesday over the committee's proposal to pay needy Canadians a guaranteed annual income.

"Too costly," said federal Welfare Minister John Munro, echoing the stand taken on the issue earlier by Prime Minister Trudeau.

"Nonsense," retorted Senator David Croll, the 71-year-old Toronto Liberal who was committee chairman. "We can't afford not to do this. The present welfare system has outlived its usefulness."

* * *

The guaranteed income would apply to all except persons under age 40 and non-citizens. Their needs would continue to be taken care of by welfare laws.

The committee said everyone below certain "poverty lines" should be exempt from income tax. The poverty lines, determined yearly, would be based on living standards, average national income and family size.

In addition, an income floor would be fixed at 70 per cent of the poverty line so that anyone earning less than the floor would receive payments up to that level.

Munro
. . . 'Too costly'

Croll's committee estimated the plan would have cost between $800 and $900 million if it had been in force last year.

Munro's estimate was $1.5 to $2 billion more than the current government income-subsidy programs such as family and youth allowances and old age pension.

* * *

It would hit taxpayers too hard, he said in and outside the Commons.

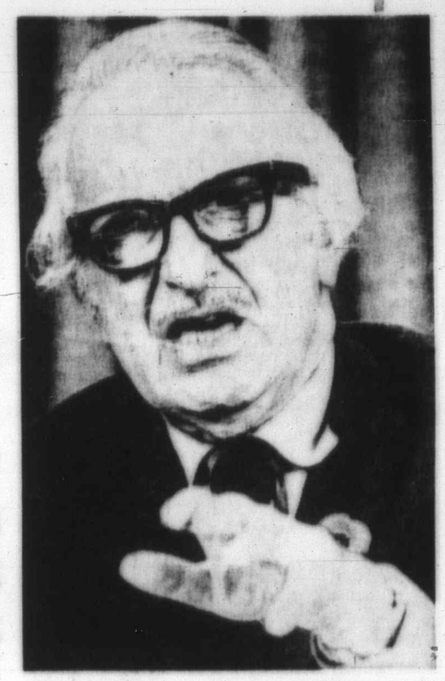

Governments have always backed away from programs," said Croll. "They have been doing it for 40 years."

He promptly announced plans to distribute widely both a $2 paperbound copy of the report and a 25-cent condensation. He said the senators are counting on strong public pressure to make governments adopt the plan.

Croll said in three years of hearings across Canada, the committee found not a single defender of the existing welfare system.

The report quickly ran into criticism from one non-government source.

The Highlights

Floor income of $3,500 guaranteed, protect consumers, provide legal aid

The following are the highlights of the senate committee report on poverty:

- A guaranteed annual income plan should be implemented with a floor income of $3,500. For a family of four — 70 per cent of the poverty line would be the floor. A poverty line based on a measure of the average standard of living would be established.
- The federal government would administer the plan at an estimated cost of $800 to $900 million.
- Income maintenance legislation such as family and youth allowances and old age pensions would be repealed and recipients would receive payments under the new guaranteed income plan.
- A council for applied social research should be established at the national level.
- The federal government should seek uniformity with respect to workmen's compensation.
- The federal government should pursue the objective of full employment.
- The federal government should pass legislation making equal pay for equal work mandatory.
- No minimum wage should be lower than 60 per cent of the average wage-rate in each province or zone.
- Steps should be taken to protect consumers from collection agencies and loan companies and high-risk borrowers should be provided with insured loans.
- The government of Canada should establish a national office of education to deal with national education goals.
- Hospital and medical care services should be financed entirely out of tax dollars and community based health services should be encouraged.
- Persons affected by urban renewal programs should have a say in such plans.
- There should only be one jurisdiction responsible for the entire administration of legal aid and all persons under the poverty line should get free legal aid as their right.
- Care services for children all ages should be available as a "necessary resource for the contemporary family."

Croll Report Quotes

'Existence of poverty not only deprives the poor; it impoverishes the economy'

- "Poverty is the great social issue of our time. Unless we act now, nationally and in a new and purposeful way, five million Canadians will continue to find life a bleak, bitter and never-ending struggle for survival."
- "The poor do not choose poverty. It is at once their affliction and our national shame."
- "The grim fact is that one Canadian in four lacks sufficient income to maintain a basic standard of living."
- "No nation can achieve its true greatness if it lacks the courage and determination to undertake the surgery necessary to remove the cancer of poverty from its body politic. Canadians as a whole cannot escape their share of responsibility for the situation in which this nation finds itself."
- "The social welfare structure so laboriously and painstakingly erected in Canada over the past 40 years has clearly outlived its usefulness. The social scientists who have studied it, the bureaucratics who have administered it and the poor who have experienced it are of one mind in that today's swiftly changing world, the welfare system is a hopeless failure."
- "The system has become an instrument of paternalism whereby recipients have been compelled to do what others thought good for them, and to conform to middle-class norms that the poor themselves have neither comprehended nor appreciated."
- "Sixty per cent of the poor are not on welfare."
- "The notion that the poor do not want to work can be quickly dispelled. The plain fact is that the vast majority of the 'working poor' continue to work at jobs that pay no more than they would receive on welfare."
- "The existence of poverty not only deprives the poor, it impoverishes the whole economy. The inadequate participation of the poor in the economy, it has been estimated, deprives it of somewhere between $1-2½ billion a year."
- "We must move from a welfare strategy to income strategy; from services to money; from helplessness to hope; and from despair to destiny. We propose to pay people, not governments."

Income Plan Opposed

Gaglardi Says Report Takes Turn for Worse

Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi said Wednesday he agrees with a part of the Senate report on poverty but added "nobody has come up with what is going to be the behavior of a human family treated on that (guaranteed annual income) kind of system."

"The report says 'scrap the welfare system,' which I'll buy. But the senate suggests replacing the welfare system which is bad enough with something that is 20 times worse," Gaglardi said.

Gaglardi pointed out a guaranteed annual income would rob persons of their dignity. "When people receive money when they're not in need . . . you're deteriorating them."

In the past Premier Bennett has gone on record as strongly favoring a guaranteed annual wage for all Canadians. He has argued that if all Quebecers were entitled to a decent living standard there would be no separatism.

Instead of "pouring millions of dollars into something that is useless," Gaglardi suggested that the money be used to create full employment.

"The only time a person is happy is when he is making his own way," Gaglardi said. He said ambition and incentive would be destroyed in a guaranteed annual wage system.

After pointing out that communism should theoretically work, Gaglardi cited Russia as a country in which "communism doesn't work."

"It takes incentive to get people to work. In Russia, they can't even grow enough wheat on their farms for themselves," he said.

House Hurries Tax Bill Items

OTTAWA (CP) — MPs moved from acrimony to amity Wednesday in the tax-bill debate, passing more items in one afternoon than they had in all previous 15 days of technical scrutiny of the bill.

The easy-going mood was in marked contrast to a knock-down battle Tuesday night, when the government stifled debate on a hotly-contested farming clause and accused Progressive Conservative MPs of filibuster.

Most of the subclauses passed Wednesday, however, were hold-overs from the existing tax laws. Others involved minor or non-controversial changes.

A total of 39 subclauses were approved in the afternoon, bringing the total passed to 71. There are 333 in all in the big bill.

The afternoon sitting settled down despite a provocative motion by Steve Otto, parliamentary secretary to Supply Minister James Richardson, that the House quit debating the bill in the face of opposition filibuster.

The House defeated his motion, MPs of all parties standing against him.

Otto introduced his motion after the debate began on the issue that raised tempers Tuesday night — the prohibition on claiming salary paid a wife by her husband as a tax-deductible business expense.

But the government proposal to continue the restriction was approved right after the

Barrett Clowning, Bennett Replies

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislature Reporter

Premier Bennett Wednesday shrugged off Opposition Leader Dave Barrett's call for a winter election, saying the NDP chief was "a clown" making wild and irresponsible statements.

Commenting on the NDP leader's statement that issues for a winter election would be employment and what he claimed was an attempt to make B.C. another California, Benett said:

"My very good friend Mr. Barrett just couldn't stand the great success of the Social Credit convention in Vancouver so he had to go off in his usual manner and make wild and irresponsible statements.

"He's just clowning, and that is apparently what he's best at. All the facts about the B.C. economy are completely the opposite of what he said."

Bennett produced the latest Statistics Canada date which show there were 73,000 more persons employed in B.C. last month than there were in the same month of 1970. The jobless total dropped to 53,000 from 69,000 in the 12-month period, while the seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate in B.C. dropped to 6.2 per cent from 8.4 per cent in October, 1970.

Unemployment, Bennett said, remains a problem but it is one which B.C. is coping with better than any other province. He added: "This is just the opposite of the impression that Mr. Barrett, the extreme leftist head of the

Regional Powers Increase Queried

NANAIMO — More and more power for the regional government and less and less autonomy for local governments is a trend that concerns Nelson Allen, president of the anti-pollution body SPEC's Nanaimo branch.

Speaking to a ratepayers group in Qualicum this week Allen said planning departments and civil servants in regional districts seem "all to anxious to present pre-packaged solutions to problems in such a way that local representatives on the board are forced to accept the proposals."

"I have some very serious doubts that regional boards are representing completely the feelings of their local areas," he said.

The influence of regional governments is growing at a tremendous rate in the province, Allen said, and it might be the best thing in the long run if required services can be delivered at a lower cost with local political autonomy being protected at the same time.

Allen said he is concerned that B.C. Hydro will try to build a nuclear power plant on the Island.

He urged people to exercise their local political power and make representations to the Public Utilities Commission when the hearings are held on this subject, "if natural gas for Vancouver Island can be delivered cheaper by a Nanaimo firm rather than by Malaspina Gas Company."

Autumn Showcase Prizes Awarded

NANAIMO — Prizes were awarded Tuesday night to the winners of the jury show in the annual autumn showcase which is sponsored by the arts council of Nanaimo regional district.

The paintings were on display last weekend and the prize-winning entries went on display Wednesday.

Winners in the oil, acrylic and tempera category: Pat Thompson, Victoria, 1; Paul Kuhn, Port Alberni, 2; Frank Farkas, Nanaimo, 3.

There was no first prize in the water color section. The second prize went to A. L. Pauls, Nanaimo and third was Winnifred Pitts, Saanichton.

Graphics: Aileen Devereux, Port Alberni, 1; Pamela Regan, Parksville, 2; Edith Jones, Sidney, 3.

The juror's decision this year was that the sculpture was not "mature enough" to warrant awarding prizes.

There were 52 other entries that were accepted or given honorable mentions.

The festival is sponsored each year as a means of display for Vancouver Island artists.

Jurors were William West, head of the art department at Oak Bay high school; John Dobereiner, associate professor teaching art at the University of Victoria; and Glenn Edward Howarth, art critic for the Victoria Times.

Pawned Items Cost $500

NANAIMO — John Molteni, 18, 304 Waskesiah, has been fined $500 for possession of stolen property.

Molteni was apprehended Oct. 4 with items stolen from commercial pawnbrokers.

Provincial Court Judge Stanley Wardill told 54-year-old Melvin J. Paton that he had a lengthy and unenviable record as he prohibited him from possessing firearms for five years.

Paton was also fined $100 and put on probation for three years on a charge of causing a disturbance by being drunk, Oct. 20 at the Globe Hotel.

Wardill attributed Paton's problems to liquor.

Port Alberni Elections

One Won't Say, One To Tell All

PORT ALBERNI — Ald. Jim Macfie says he won't run again, Ald. Howard McLean won't tell, and Ald. George McKnight plans to tell every one he will run at a big birthday banquet Nov. 21.

That's the present line-up of incumbent aldermen, girding themselves for the coming civic elections in December.

Macfie says his job as sales manager for Alberni Plywoods is growing more demanding and he has had a lengthy spell of civic service behind him. It's time for someone else to share the burden.

McLean has often been suggested as a candidate for mayor. However, despite the fact that Ald. George Dunbar has already announced his intentions, McLean is still guarding the secret of whether he will run for mayor, run for alderman or run at all.

However, a group calling themselves the George McKnight election committee have decided to sponsor a birthday banquet Nov. 21 at Nordley Centre, honoring the alderman's 53rd birthday, and "to give recognition to his years of hard work" for the city of Port Alberni.

At the banquet, McKnight will not only report highlights of his last two years on council but will announce his candidacy officially for alderman in the coming election together with his platform.

Jim Law, chairman of the McKnight campaign committee said, "It will provide an opportunity for all friends and supporters of McKnight to participate by lending their support, asking questions and putting ideas forward pertaining to the city's operation."

Two newcomers are also in the running, Bill Gibson, sports director for the local radio station, clashed hard with Ald. Dunbar over the parks and recreation commission and challenged Dunbar to resign and run against him in the coming election. Dunbar did resign but it was found ultra vires and he resumed his seat on council.

Now he has resigned again, this time to run for mayor.

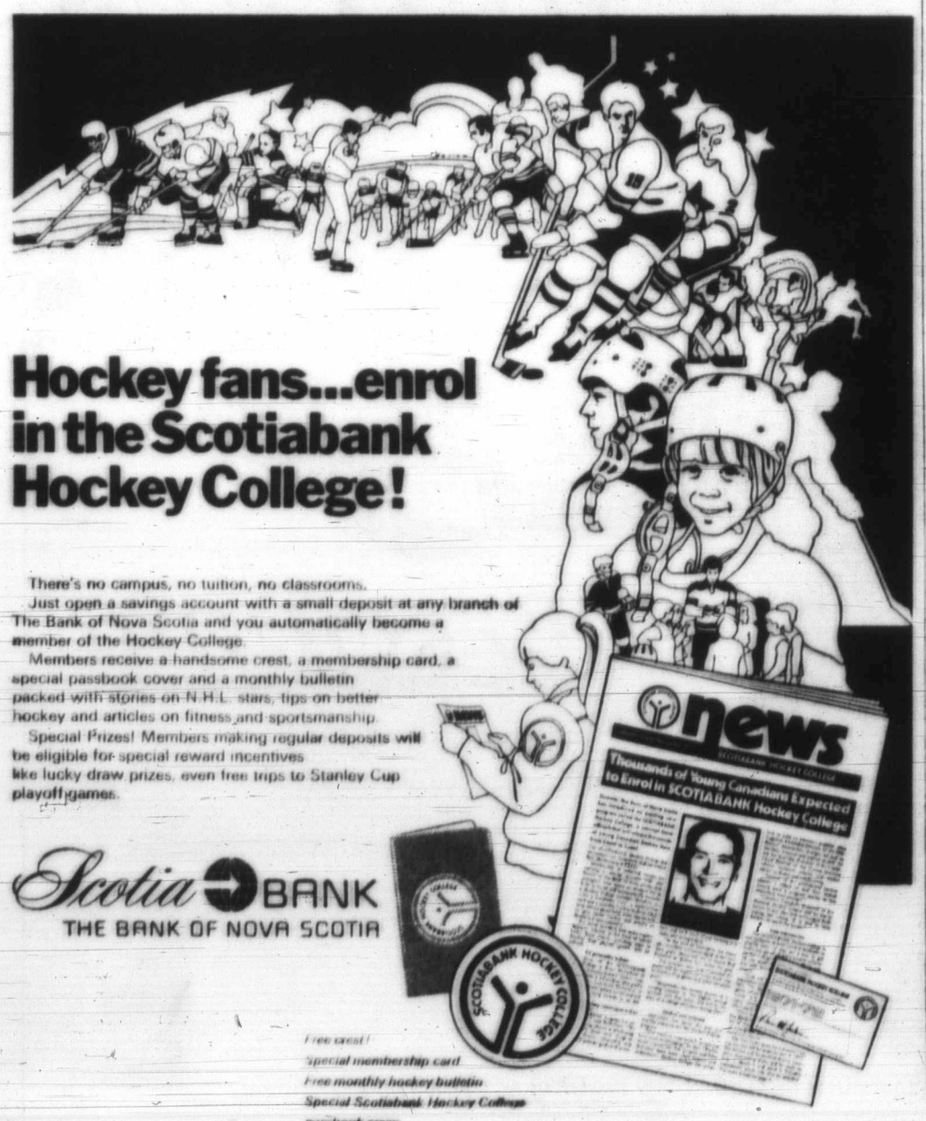

A newcomer to Port Alberni politics, Henry Niezen, has also offered himself as an aldermanic candidate. Niezen was former city planning administrator for Port Alberni, a position that has since been terminated.

Retaining their seats for the balance of their two year terms are Ald. Clara Sexton and Ald. Mark Ivezich.

Disrespect to War Dead Claimed

Legionnaires Blast Holiday Switches

PORT ALBERNI — Presidents of both Canadian Legion branches have criticized MacMillan-Bloedel and workers at Sonass and Alberni Pacific divisions for a decision to close Friday instead of observing Remembrance Day Thursday.

Gerry Wright and Glen Simpson, in a joint statement, said "The decision was made hastily, selfishly and in ignorance of the true meaning of Remembrance Day. This disrespect to 114,000 young Canadians who gave their lives in two world wars so they could set up industrial complexes in freedom, or have the right to form a free and democratic union is shameful and disgusting.

"They also won you the right to say to hell with your memory, we are going to keep the wheels turning. We are going to change your day and hunt and fish, get drunk in the beer parlors, but we are not going to honor you," the statement added.

The presidents of the legions also commented on the fact that many of the union members are new Canadians. "We welcome you as citizens of our great country and remind you that most of these dead paid the supreme sacrifice on the soil of your homelands, freeing you from tyranny and allowing you a freedom to join us as fellow citizens in Canada." The legionaires asked the newcomers to join them in their Remembrance Day celebrations, which they said were established by proclmation and no one has the moral right to tamper with the date.

A spokesman for MacMillan-Bloedel said it was within the union contract that the men in each mill could decide each year whether they wanted to have the actual day off, Nov. 11, or as in this case, another day which would give them a long weekend. Similiarly Good Friday is often a workday and Easter Monday the day off.

Shop committee at Alberni Plywood division decided to retain the actual Remembrance Day observance and that mill will be closed Thursday, and open Friday.

MacMillan-Bloedel also issued a warning to those who plan to spend their Thursday holiday hunting. Loggers have also opted to have Friday off and as a result, will be working in the woods Thursday. All hunters are asked to use extra caution because of the presence of loggers in what might appear to be good hunting areas.

Campbell River Request Not Received

Brothers Denies Refusal To Review High School

Education Minister Donald Brothers Wednesday night denied that he had refused to order a special independent review into standards at Campbell River senior high school.

The teaching staff at the school Monday called for such a review of the department's decision to revoke the school's accreditation but no request has been received, Brothers said.

Brothers was reported by other sources earlier Wednesday to have refused thereview.

"What I said," Brothers told the Colonist, "was that the review had not been requested."

He refused to comment on whether the review would be granted if the request is received.

The department revoked the school's accreditation in September, removing its power to recommend students for entrance to university without final examinations.

After protests from the community and a visit from school trustees, the department agreed to re-evaluate its decision earlier than normal if the school would submit more complete records of its activities, and if results of January exams and other student performance were favourable.

School principal John Young said he would resign immediately if the evaluation "by a team of impartial, outside educators" proved the school to be below the average standard for B.C. schools.

Young presented a prepared brief from teachers to the Campbell River school district trustees Monday night and copies were also sent to the education department and the B.C. Teachers' Federation.

In the brief, Young and his staff replied to conditions set down by the education department for the return of accreditation rights at the high school.

The department conditions are that:

- all students, as required, write January examinations;
- all students, as required, write survey tests;
- Young complete application for accreditation by March, 1972;
- department to review the application by April 1, 1972;
- external examinations to be made of the school by the department by May 1, 1972 and
- all data will re reviewed earlier than normal by the department to help reach a quick decision.

Young said in his brief that his staff could not be expected to accept without protest the unjustified withdrawal of accreditation.

He lashed the department for failing to provide the school with information concerning provincial standards of achievement and its failure to provide information about the specific standards schools must meet in order to obtain accreditation.

"We urgently request that accreditation be restored immediatly so that an end can be brought about to the injustice being vested upon innocent students," the brief said.

It was also learned Monday night that Campbell River high could lose up to $90,000 in special provincial government grants after June, 1972. No definite reason for the termination of renewal of the grants has been given, just that they could be terminated.

Back Injuries Delay Sentence

NANAIMO — A serious back injury has delayed the sentencing of a 24-year-old Nanaimo man who pleaded guilty to breaking, entering and theft from Brechin Lumber Sept. 24.

James Milton Hoff will be sentenced Dec. 2. His back was fractured when during a police chase over the East Wellington bluffs, he fell down a 60-foot cliff.

Charged with Hoff is Kenneth Ducharme, 35, who will appear Nov. 19 for sentence. Ducharme pleaded guilty to the offence earlier. The pair admitted taking a safe from Brechin Lumber then jemmying it open. Two women are awaiting trial for the same offence.

A 21-year-old Duncan youth has been fined $900 and put on probation for two years after a Supreme Court jury deliberated for more than eight hours before finding him guilty of causing bodily harm with intent to maim, wound or disfigure.

Gannang Thom had also been charged with attempted murder and possession of an offensive weapon but was found innocent on both charges.

Charges were laid May 5 after Debra Ann Painter, 18, went into Henry's Imports on Craig in Duncan on her lunch hour and came out of the store with 10 head cuts that required 33 stitches.

Miss Painter claimed it was an unprovoked attack, and Thom claimed that it appeared Miss Painter was trying to rob him.

A self-confessed heroin addict was given a one-year suspended sentence Wednesday after he pleaded guilty to theft over $50.

William Stafford Christopher Morrison, 24, of Toronto, admitted taking a $389 stereo cassette tape recorder from Kelly DeYong Nov. 4.

Police said the recorder was sold for $125 with another person being involved and that Morrison was apprehended with $40 that he was ordered to return to the company.

One man was acquitted and another pleaded guilty to a charge of causing a disturbance by fighting in the waiting room of the Provincial Court Tuesday afternoon.

Edward Doda, who pleaded guilty, was given a six months suspended sentence.

A fist fight apparently broke out after a family dispute.

Ferry Mayne Queen Out Another Month

It will at least be another month before the B.C. Ferries Mayne Queen, currently undergoing engine repairs at Vancouver, returns to service, a highways department official told the Colonist Wednesday.

The ferry has been out of service since last week when a connecting rod broke and went through the side of the engine.

The Pender Queen, a standby ferry which is used while others of a similar size are undergoing repairs, is now being used on the Mayne Queen's route, which includes Galiano Island, Mayne Island, Saturna Island, North Pender Island, and Swartz Bay.

But Spare a Moment for Harvey

Classes 'As Usual' Despite Second Fire

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — Like most community churches, Cobble Hill United will feature a memorial program today — but many of the 80 young boys attending probably won't be thinking of Canada's war dead.

Instead, these boys, students at Cliffside preparatory school, will likely be remembering their friend Harvey, who died Wednesday of smoke inhalation when Cliffside had its second major fire in four days.

Harvey, a rabbit, died when five classrooms, a science lab, cloakroom and chapel were destroyed by fire early Wednesday. Earlier this week the school's dining room and kitchen, valued at $100,000 had been razed by fire.

Headmaster Turner Huggard said Wednesday that cause of the latest fire is undetermined, but stressed that there was no evidence to support arson. He said school activities were continuing as usual with students using playrooms, the library, gymnasium and other spare rooms as classrooms.

"The offers of help from other independent schools have been quite a remarkable gesture of solidarity" said Huggard. He mentioned Shawnigan Lake, Brentwood College, and Strathcona Lodge schools as having offered assistance.

Huggard estimated damage caused by the latest fire at $75,000.

Shawnigan Lake fire chief Eric Gibson would not comment on the cause of the blaze. He said investigators from Victoria and the fire marshall from Vancouver were still checking for fire causes.

Doctors Testify In Murder Trial

NANAIMO — The trial of Robert Thomas Copeland, 25, of Alberta began in Assize Court in Nanaimo Wednesday.

Copeland is accused of the non-capital murder of his estranged wife Barbara Gay Copeland, May 6, in a boarding house at 995 Franklyn Street.

Pathologist Dr. Stanley Grant testified that Mrs. Copeland had been strangled with an instrument such as a tie, rope or belt and that intercourse had occurred probably shortly before death.

Dr. P. J. Chambers, who was the first physician to examine the woman's body, said he found her lying peacefully on her right side as if she was asleep. He said he determined she had died a violent death by marks found on her neck.

Chambers also examined Copeland in the cells of the Nanaimo RCMP detachment and found shallow scratches on his back.

Defence counsel Sid Clark asked if the scratches could have been made in the throes of passion and Chambers agreed.

Chambers also said he found lipstick marks on Copeland's right shoulder.

The trial continues Friday before Mr. Justice Walter Kirke-Smith.

Parent Volunteers 'Wonderful'

Teachers Find Pot of Gold With a Little Bit of Help

By ELIZABETH DUNN
Colonist Correspondent

MILL BAY — Marie Dyke has found the pot of gold at the end of a teacher's rainbow — another pair of hands.

Mrs. Dyke is one of the many teachers in the Cowichan school district who have, for the past three years, received the assistance of volunteer parent teacher aides.

"The parents are just wonderful — there are so many games that we just couldn't do without the help of the aides," said Mrs. Dyke, a teacher at the Cobble Hill kindergarten.

Her view was shared by Janice Rolston, the assistant principal at Bayview elementary.

"The parents get a chance to see what goes on in the schools and the children enjoy the extra attention," Mrs. Rolston said.

During the 1970-71 school year, 65 parents in the Mill Bay area offered their time to the five elementary schools in the Mill Bay complex.

"This has meant that the teacher is free to concentrate on weak areas, and give students more individual help," explained John Rickaby, principal of the schools.

He said that he was "completely sold" on the concept of the volunteer parent aides. "They have proven so helpful, I could not speak highly enough of their contribution to the learning situation in the schools."

Rickaby said that he had initially experienced qualms over the reliability of the parents, since they worked on a volunteer basis — "but they have proven even more reliable in attendance than the teachers."

He stressed that the aides do not replace the teacher, rather they free the teacher from tasks that did not need specialized teacher training.

Each aide works an average of a half day each week, and according to Rickaby, the schools can always use more volunteers. Special training is not required.

What is required, however, was expressed by Ann Taylor, a parent who has worked two years as an aide in the Mill Bay schools. "Anybody who enjoys working with children would enjoy this work — I enjoy it very much."

Mrs. Taylor, who has two children attending schools in the area, said that one thing which surprised her was the happy atmosphere in the schools. "The teachers and children get along so well, and the teachers seem ready to give so much to the children — it is much different from the schools I remember attending."

Another volunteer, Joy Curtis, said that she had found working in the schools "very rewarding" and plans to continue her work. Mrs. Curtis has worked in the kindergarten at Cobble Hill for almost a year.

That kindergarten had over 25 aides last year, and this year Mrs. Dyke said, "we have an aide every morning and afternoon but there is still room for parents who would like to participate."

She summed up her own feelings as a teacher with: "The parents are taking the loneliness out of teaching."

Have Railroad . . . and Big Ideas

NANAIMO — Nanaimo Parks and Recreation Commission has a railroad system and it wants to do something with it.

Some time ago the commission bought from B.C. Hydro two engines, a crew car, six flat cars, switches and gears and some track for $1. The system is currently in the Jordan River area near Port Renfrew.

At a meeting of the commission this week, Bob Evans presented a motion which was approved to request the provincial government to set up the track and maintain the system on Newcastle Island.

Evans said the railroad combined with dummy displays of B.C.'s main industries such as logging and mining could be a worldwide attraction.

He said a self-propelled cable barge could transport visitors to the island without interfering with Brechin Channel water traffic.

A recently announced federal-provincial employment loan scheme could help to cut costs on such a project, Evans said.

The commission has asked MLA and Nanaimo Mayor Frank Ney to present the plan to the government for consideration.

The commission got a surprise gift this week which restored faith in human nature.

R. Whitefort, RR 3 Nanaimo, presented the commission with a 19-inch portable TV set and said the TV could be used for whatever program needs it most.

Unsewered View Royal

Health Board Cracks Down

The Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health is starting to lower the boom on non-sewered property of View Royal residents, board members were told at Tuesday's regular meeting.

L. E. Benham, assistant director of sanitation services, told the board that three motels on Old Island Highway would be the first to be affected.

He said these places would be notified they would have to cease disposing of effluent in a drainage system which has been used by area dwellers for 25 years, although it is primarily a storm drain system draining into Portage Inlet and Craigflower Creek.

"It is ironic that it was the construction of a water system that brought this situation to a head," Benham said.

He said the Greater Victoria Water District is building water lines along the Old Island Highway in the trench where the unincorporated area formerly had a closed storm drain system.

"They are having to work in all this filth," he said, referring to effluent draining in the open ditch—where the water pipes are being laid.

He said the alternative for the motels, since they did not have sufficient land for proper percolation, would be to build holding tanks and that would be "economically unfeasible."

"This is only the start of it," Benham said. "More and more people will be affected as the water line extends."

Benham said the health board had been holding off on taking action against offenders in the area, where lot sizes and predominantly rocky land make it almost impossible to install adequate septic tanks, and the practice of piping the effluent to the storm drain system has been going on for many years.

"We have been keeping an eye on what is happening there, regarding sewers."

View Royal residents turned down a sewer proposal on a referendum vote in 1968, and Monday night showed opposition to a Capital Regional Board proposal to include a referendum in the December election, seeking ratepayer approval to contract for an engineering survey at about $15,000.
